Goering Says Germany Has Mobilized Forces For Blow in the West

Declares Mighty Army Will Attack as It Did in Poland and Predicts Great Victory

By EDWIN SHANKE

Berlin, April 3 (AP)—Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering, Adolf Hitler's political heir, told millions of German children today that Hitler had mobilized all his forces for "a decisive blow in the West."

"It is here," he said, "that the decisive blow must be struck."

The mighty German army, he told the breathless children, will attack on the west as it did in the Polish blitzkrieg, "when Hitler is determined to put an end to this war."

He gave no further clue to the time of the attack.

As Goering spoke, Col. Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch was inspecting troops on the Western front, especially those stationed in the Rhineland. The tour, which started Sunday, ended tonight.

Goering spoke over a nationwide radio hook-up from the festival hall of the air ministry to school children and apprentices in factories who forgot their studies or dropped their tools to hear the one-hour address.

Immediately before Goering were assembled youths employed in the air ministry as office boys, messengers and apprentices as well as members of the Hitler youth flying corps.

Ready to Attack in West

"Having their rear and flanks secure," said Goering, "the German armed forces in one firm bloc are facing Britain and France in the West. It is here that the decisive blow must be struck, and for this decisive blow the fuhrer has mobilized all resources."

Goering said that England and France "criminally started" the war and that "because they have done this misdeed, destiny will x x x give them their answer."

"Through us," he said, "fate will give them this answer. Now they will learn what it means to attack Germany. In eighteen days Poland was destroyed in lightning-like fashion. Our enemies should note that we have not become weaker but infinitely stronger as a result of these blows."

"Just as we dealt out our blows there, so we aim ours at them when it is time to show that Germany is determined to put an end to this war—that I am convinced."

Predicts Brilliant Victory

Meantime Nazi orators are becoming very busy. Besides Goering, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels and Robert Ley, head of the labor front, today expressed confidence in what Goebbels said would become "the most brilliant victory of German history."

Hundreds of small district Nazi rallies are being held regularly at which speakers discourse on such themes as "why we will win this war" and "England, the taskmaster of nations."

While Marshal Goering was praising his air force as "the most powerful" in the world, Nazi battle planes were out over the North Sea, attacking a British convoy. DNB, the official German news agency, said that the attack was "successful." Last night German planes reported they had hit several British warships with bombs at Scapa Flow.

"Oscar the Poet" Held in Jail As Witness in N.Y. Gang Deaths

New York, April 3 (AP)—Oscar the Poet, who made "hot cars" vanish from Brooklyn's pull-for-cash syndicate, was put in jail today to keep him from becoming a clay pigeon for the guns of the mob he betrayed.

The 38-year-old Bard of Murder, whose favorite poem is Wordsworth's "Ode on Intimations of Immortality," was held in $50,000 bail in connection with the theft of fifteen motor cars to "disintegrate" the way of sales to junkyards.

The subdued little figure, whose middle-length overcoat makes him look like a man standing in a hole, still clutching his dog-eared anthology of verse when he was led away after arraignment before County Court Judge Franklin Taylor.

This oddest of the gallery of characters uncovered by District Attorney William F. O'Dwyer in his investigation of a gang to which he attributes more than thirty cut-rate "contract" murders, was identified as Oscar Friedman, junk dealer and father of a boy, 12. At first he would admit only to the name of Oscar.

Bruce Ready To Debate Issues of State Campaign

Willing To Speak from Same Platform with Sen. Radcliffe

Baltimore, April 3 (AP)—Declaring that he was "in complete readiness to debate" the issues, Howard Bruce again challenged Senator George L. Radcliffe tonight to speak "from the same platform or any other way." In their campaign for the Democratic nomination as United States senator.

Bruce asserted in a radio broadcast "reviewing" the Maryland primary election campaign between himself and Radcliffe, that he had answered every charge and issue that the senator or his managers had brought up, but that Radcliffe had remained silent.

"Why does the senator not come forward and frankly and openly talk of his record and tell the people of Maryland what he proposes to do in the future?" Bruce declared.

"Instead of openly discussing such issues, he and his sponsor (Senator Tydings) try to create the impression that he has been of great influence for the past five years through his cloakroom activities, in influencing other senators."

"Senator Tydings, in behalf of Senator Radcliffe in what amounted to an apology, has emphasized his colleague's strong influence on opinion in the cloakrooms and the committees of the Senate."

"It appears, however, from his voting record that Senator Radcliffe has had small influence on his colleague from Maryland as on all major measures they are in opposition—one voting 'yes' and one voting 'no.'"

Finds Opponent Amusing

Bruce said the picture of Radcliffe, "the powerful senator, influencing others almost amusing to those who know the great difficulty he has in making up his own mind on any subject."

Election Results Show Third Term Movement Strong

But Some Prominent Democrats See Trouble Ahead in November

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, April 3 (AP)—Tuesday's elections left an impression in many quarters that the Draft-Roosevelt movement had been strengthened within the Democratic party—but there were also predictions of Democratic troubles in November.

At the same time none disputed that the presidential prospects of Thomas E. Dewey had been increased by his 2 to 1 victory over Senator Vandenberg of Michigan in the Wisconsin's presidential primary. Politicians found the picture of an eastern city man proving a big vote getter in the western farm-lands highly impressive.

But, on the Democratic side, the adherents of President Roosevelt dealt a blow to the anti-third term campaign of Vice President Garner with a 3 to 1 victory in Wisconsin and margins running as high as five to one in New York city.

Third Term Dead

This demonstration, or reminder, of the vote-getting powers of the Roosevelt name, many felt, could not but have its effect upon the state organization leaders of the Democratic party.

Prominent among the dissenters from this view, however, were E. B. Germany and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, co-chairman of the Garner for President Committee, who issued a statement at Dallas, Tex., saying "the third term is dead."

"They contended that only 'the job holders and check receivers,' together with a 'last minute invasion of the Democratic primary' by Wisconsin Progressives, prevented the election of a state of Garner delegates to the national convention. Much attention was focused here on the fact that the Republican vote in Wisconsin was considerably larger than that party's vote in the 1936 primary. While some predicted that the Republicans would carry the state in November, Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) said:

"I don't think you can look on this primary vote as any indication of what will happen in November. You have to take into consideration that several hundred thousand voters who apparently didn't take part in this primary will participate in the general election."

Senator Taft (R-O), himself a presidential candidate, saw a "very substantial anti-Roosevelt sentiment" in the Wisconsin returns, but when asked for comment on Dewey's victory over Vandenberg, replied that "Nothing would surprise me in Wisconsin."

Mr. Roosevelt, Taft said at Columbus, O., was weaker than most other candidates, except in the cities, and "definitely" the "weakest man in border and farm states." He added that the third-term issue would cost the Democrats many votes.

Simpson Optimistic

Wenatch F. Simpson, New York Republican national committeeman, saw encouragement for a Republican victory in the Wisconsin returns. He added that Mr. Roosevelt was "far and away the strongest" (Continued on Page Two)

Army Pilot Dies In Plane Crash

Cleveland, April 3 (AP)—An army pilot helped send two attack bombers "crashing" into Lake Erie in mimic warfare today, then died a few minutes later.

The sleek aluminum ship, flying low because of poor visibility, smashed into a tree, the porch of a house, another tree and then the ground, hurling its motor and housing into another porch.

The pilot, Lieut. James Warren Phelps, Jr., 23, of Berwyn, Pa., died a few minutes after he was pulled from the wreckage. The ship crashed in suburban Euclid on the Lake Erie shore.

Phelps and seventeen other pilots from Selfridge Field, Mich., flew to Cleveland this morning for maneuvers and theoretically destroyed the two bombers before a rainstorm arose.

The squadron took shelter at Cleveland airport for a short time and a few minutes after 1 p. m. (EST) took off, in three flights, for Selfridge field.

It ran into heavy mist, and Phelps' flight, commanded by Capt. J. N. Stone, made a wide circle eastward over the lake. Phelps, fourth in the line, was "flying too low," Capt. Stone said.

The other five planes in the group returned safely to Cleveland airport and the remainder of the squadron landed in or near Canton and Minerva, O.

ACCUSE SILVER SHIRT BOSS

Richard Rollins (left), Rep. Samuel Dickstein and Dorothy Waring, all of New York, appear before the Dies Committee in Washington. Miss Waring said she was placed by Dickstein as a confidential secretary for a Silver Shirts affiliate headed by William Dudley Pelley, who told her he "planned to seize control of the U. S." Rollins is a former investigator for the Dickstein Committee, forerunner of Dies group.

Advance of Stocks Seen As Prompted by Swing To Republican Party

Dewey's Vote in Wisconsin Encourages Many Traders; Steel Shares Advance Sharply

New York, April 3 (AP)—Big buying orders for steel and other industrial stocks showered on Wall Street brokers today, lifting many shares $1 to $4 in the heaviest dealings since November.

United States Steel soared $3.50 to $62.75 and Bethlehem nearly $4 to around $61. Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Anaconda Copper, du Pont and American Air Lines rose $1 to more than $2.

Brokers said many traders professed to find indications of a Republican swing in the Wisconsin primary vote and sought to make a bullish argument out of that interpretation.

Some market commentators, on the other hand, emphasized hopes for an impending industrial upturn as the main force behind the buying, citing such signs as:

(1) This week's upturn in steel production after a sharp January-March decline.

(2) The largest export demand for steel in twenty years.

(3) A forecast by Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator, that home building this year would be the highest in twelve years, based on new high marks in FHA business.

(4) A revival in textile buying the last few days after the winter's slack.

(5) A widespread belief in financial circles that a general business turnaround may be seen within the next few weeks.

Corporate bonds and most commodities advanced with stocks. Stock exchange dealings totaled 1,725,240 shares, the highest since November 3.

Earl of Athlone Is Appointed Governor General of Canada

SUCCEEDS TWEEDSMUIR

Brother of Queen Mother Mary Succeeds Late Lord Tweedsmuir

London, April 3 (AP)—The Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mother Mary and a former governor-general of the Union of South Africa, tonight was appointed governor-general of Canada to succeed the late Lord Tweedsmuir.

The tall, solidly built earl, who will be 66 on April 14, is expected to leave for Canada in two or three weeks, accompanied by his countess, Princess Alice, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

A Buckingham palace announcement said that King George VI was "graciously pleased" to approve the appointment of his uncle, a football enthusiast and big game hunter and veteran of military service in India and in the Boer and World Wars.

Explosion in Car Kills Executive Of Coal Company

Authorities Converge on Clay, W. Va., Following Tragedy

Clay, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—J. V. Hinshelwood, 49-year-old coal company superintendent, was killed today by an explosion in his automobile while driving from Dundon to Widen.

Prosecutor Henry McCrane, county officers and state troopers went to the scene of the tragedy, in an isolated section of Clay county, to investigate.

Lieutenant J. H. Fillingim and Trooper C. L. Walker came from Charleston to join Troopers M. B. Salvers and T. A. Donahue, of Clay.

Officers declined to comment on the cause pending an investigation. Reports were that Hinshelwood, general superintendent of the Elk River Coal and Lumber Company's operation since 1927, was alone in the car at the time of the blast.

Mrs. Maxine Mullins, who visited the scene soon after the explosion was reported, described the result as "the most horrible thing I have ever seen."

Car Blown to Pieces

"The car was upside down. It had been blown all to pieces. I saw a dismembered leg in a ditch and there were fragments of flesh in a tree by the roadside."

"It apparently was a terrific explosion and seemed to me that it centered under the seat of the car."

"Persons at the scene seemed to think a time bomb had set off the blast, but I heard no official statement to that effect."

Hinshelwood had driven approximately 18 of the 19 miles' distance from Widen to Dundon when the explosion let go.

The scene is about one and a half miles from Clay, the county seat and one-half mile from Dundon, on the opposite side of the Elk River from Clay.

There were no eye-witnesses. First on the scene were highway workers who heard the blast.

Hinshelwood was a member of the Clay County School Board, and friends surmised he might have been enroute to Clay on business pertaining to that office.

His Body Was Badly Mutilated

The Elk river operation at Widen is one of the few non-union operations in West Virginia. A case is pending before the National Labor Relations Board in which the United Mine Workers claim to represent a majority of the 700-odd workers, while an independent employees association has intervened on the ground it represents a majority.

Hinshelwood had been associated with the Elk River company since 1915, serving first in the accounting department at Dundon.

Previously he had been secretary to the late J. W. Dawson when Dawson was general manager of the Kelly's Creek Coaleries Company in Kanawha county.

Hinshelwood is survived by his widow and three children by a former marriage.

Mountain Climber Freezes to Death

Mount Hood, Ore., April 3 (AP)—Treacherous Mount Hood tonight yielded the body of the second mountain-climber lost in its vast snow fields since Sunday.

The huddled, frozen form of Gerald Hermann, 28, was found north of Mississippi Head, twenty-four hours after searchers came upon his wandering, snow-blinded companion, James Lorentz, 19.

Forest service officials said Hermann's body was found at the 8000-foot level more than three miles from the White River glacier head where he collapsed in the Sunday blizzard. Lorentz piled their packs about his companion for protection, then set out alone for aid.

Searchers believed Hermann, dazed by exhaustion and exposure, struggled to his feet and headed into the storm, traveling in the wrong direction.

Two parties, headed by Glen Asher and Joe Leuthold, found the body a short time before the search was to have been abandoned.

Blinded, horribly frostbitten and wind burned, Lorentz was found yesterday wandering west from Paradise Park, near the timberline, after passing unseen a shelter hut within 500 feet of his course.

He collapsed as rescuers reached him and was lashed to skis for the tortuous trip to reach shelter.

Appointed To Direct All Activities of British in Air, on Land and at Sea

HE'LL PROSECUTE WAR

Winston Churchill

Will Retain Post as First Lord of Admiralty in Drastic Shake-up of Chamberlain's Cabinet

By DREW MIDDLETON

London, April 3 (AP)—Winston Churchill, fighting heir to Great Britain's lofty traditions, became her "man of battle" tonight in a drastic shake-up of the cabinet which made him director of all the nation's warring services.

Standing close behind the pudgy but volatile figure of the first lord of the admiralty in the figures emerging from Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's third government shift of the war are two other key men—Sir Kingsley Wood and Sir John Simon.

Reporting with Churchill to Chamberlain as heads of war committees, they form a war cabinet in fact if not in name.

Sir Kingsley, who traded his air ministry with Sir Samuel Hoare for the latter's post as lord privy seal, will head the Home Policy Committee.

Will Discuss Problems

He will direct, discuss and advise on social and domestic problems of wartime, including food and agriculture—vital to this importing heavy-eating nation of 45,000,000 "shopkeepers."

To Sir John Simon, silver-haired and silent veteran of finance, remains the staggering task of presiding over the cabinet's economic policy committee. As chancellor of the exchequer he directs Great Britain's mighty offensive of pounds, shillings and pence.

With the nation quickening to the increased tempo of aerial warfare and with Germany's Goering declaring the Reich will strike on the west, Chamberlain bowed to public clamor to "fight the war" by making the 65-year-old Churchill head of the vital service committee. He remains first lord of the admiralty, as well.

In this group will serve Oliver Stanley, the war secretary; Sir Samuel Hoare, the new air minister, their chiefs of staff and Churchill's own first sea lord—Admiral Sir Dudley Pound.

Also in the Churchill committee is Leslie Burgin, minister of supply, who, although under almost continuous fire for the last six weeks, confounded prophets and remained in the cabinet.

Three Seasoned Veterans

Thus three seasoned veterans—Sir Kingsley Wood, 59; Sir John Simon, 77 and Churchill, 65—will combine with the 71-year-old Chamberlain to lead the nation through whatever is coming.

The cabinet's outstanding change in actual ministry assignments was the shift of Sir Samuel Hoare for Sir Kingsley Wood. Sir Kingsley, although roundly criticized for failure to maintain a high rate of airplane production, still is regarded highly as an organizer and "driver."

Actually it was the difference in organization of the government which made tonight's shuffle a notable one.

In his announcement of the shake-up Chamberlain said Churchill's assignment as head of the armed services committee would enable him to "keep under constant review the main factors in the strategy."

Young Communist Angry Defies Dies Committee

Francis P. O'Dea Refuses To Name Members in Colleges

By MAX ROYD

Washington, April 3 (AP)—A young Boston Communist told the Dies committee today that the Young Communist League had branches at Harvard and some of the country's other best known schools, but he defied the committee to make him tell the names of the students involved.

The witness who thus risked a contempt citation by the committee was Thomas Francis Patrick O'Dea, president of the Young Communist League of Massachusetts.

In refusing to answer questions concerning other league members, and an inquiry as to whether he would support the United States in the event that this country became engaged in war with Russia, he was even more vehement than veteran leaders of the Communist party have been before the committee.

Will Not Name Members

As to the identity of league members at Harvard, Dartmouth, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Massachusetts State, Boston University, Amherst and Radcliffe, the witness declared:

"They are entitled to their scholastic course and the right to a job later and I'll not be a party to putting anybody on a black list."

Again, when committee members questioned his contention that the Communist party had always been a party of peace, he lectured the committee:

"I don't see why we have to discuss history here; this is not a history class."

Western Maryland Leaders To Be Guests of Governor O'Connor Today

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (AP)—Sixteen Western Maryland Democratic leaders, with a lot of politics to talk about, will be guests of Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor tomorrow.

Announced occasion for the meeting is a luncheon in honor of Rep. William D. Byron, who will file his certificate of candidacy for reelection from the Sixth district. Political observers saw possibilities of other developments in the session.

There were indications the guest list was drawn as a move toward harmony in the current Democratic senatorial campaign between Howard Bruce and Senator George L. Radcliffe.

Also "on the fire" is the party's situation in Frederick county as a result of the death last week of David C. Winebrenner, 3rd, Frederick's Democratic boss for years.

Seeks Political Opinion

Sources close to the governor said the guests were chosen with a view to obtaining a cross-section of administration supporters and leaders who sided with Mayor Howard W. Jackson in the 1938 gubernatorial campaign.

Dewey Assured Of 16 Delegates From Wisconsin

New York Prosecutor's Showing Causes Surprise

Milwaukee, April 3 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey emerged today from his first test at the polls with at least sixteen of Wisconsin's twenty-four delegates to the Republican National Convention pledged to support him for the presidential nomination.

Also in its first ballot test, the third term was approved by more than three-fourths of the delegates participating in the direct presidential preference vote yesterday.

In the Democratic delegate races, rival factions supporting President Roosevelt waged a neck and neck race for control of the delegation. One delegate candidate pledged to Vice President John Nance Garner was nearing the Roosevelt men, the only strong anti-third term showing in the delegate contests.

A sleet storm in northern and central Wisconsin and the difficulties encountered by county clerks tabulating the long lists of candidates slowed up complete returns.

Returns show trend.

The returns counted, however, established the trend for the third term and for Dewey against Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of neighboring Michigan.

The motivating force of a vote that reflected reborn Republican strength, Dewey swept the four delegates-at-large seats from Vandenberg with ease. The New York district attorney's margin averaged about 60,000 through these contests.

In races for the twenty district seats, victory for twelve Dewey-pledged candidates was assured early in six congressional districts. With the vote incomplete in the other four districts, eight Dewey men were ahead by comfortable margins.

The gain in Republican strength was reflected sharply by 2,329 of the state's 3,011 precincts reported.

The top men of the Dewey and Vandenberg slates drew a total of 268,806 votes. The complete state vote in the 1936 primary gave the late Senator William Borah of Idaho 187,334 votes, with a 3,300 vote write-in for Alf M. Landon, or a total of 190,634.

FDR Gets 255,748 Votes

The Democratic presidential preference vote in 2,453 precincts totaled 339,641, divided thus: Roosevelt, 255,748; Garner, 83,893. In 1936 President Roosevelt polled 401,773, running unopposed.

The direct presidential preference vote is merely advisory and the vote for the delegates determines the complexion of the delegation. The Republican party had no entries in the preference voting.

Pledges of the delegates are not enforced by law but are obligations placed upon the delegates personally. They may shift their allegiance whenever they feel their man is out of the running.

President Roosevelt's lead over Garner in the preference vote was nearly 5 to 1 in Milwaukee, where voters replaced the veteran Socialist mayor, Daniel Webster Hoan, with a political neophyte, Carl F. Ziegler, 32-year old former assistant city attorney.

Ziegler's majority, according to incomplete returns, was 12,115 over Hoan, who has been mayor since 1916 and never before defeated for office.

Hoan matched his long record against the personal campaign of the young attorney who praised Milwaukee's achievements but insisted there was room for betterment under a change of administration.

egial situation and the progress of operations and to make recommendations to war cabinet on the general conduct of the war."

In addition, the resignation of Lord Chatfield as minister of defense coordination, leaves Churchill almost undisputed mastery over the fighting services. Furthermore, he will control the work of the ministry of supply.

This Churchill's national exuberance and daring will be checked only by the cold logic of Neville Chamberlain, the hardware maker turned statesman.

Churchill Sought Authority

It is no secret that Churchill has desired authority of some sort over the other services since the start of the war.

He always declared that the blackest mark on his record, the grim and bloody failure of the Gallipoli landing during the World War, might never have been made had he then had direction over army forces, as well as the fleet.

His new position makes him not only the highest executive of the admiralty, Britain's chief instrument of blockade, but Britain's chief strategist as well.

More than any other Briton he will have the ear of General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, the Allied army generalissimo, in the periodic meetings of the Supreme War Council.

Together they will be running the Allied side of the war—and Churchill stands for action.

against State Representative Edward M. Brady.

Ralph Coghlan, editor of the editorial page, was sentenced to twenty days in jail and fined $200, and Daniel R. Fitzpatrick, noted cartoonist, was sentenced to ten days and fined $100. A contempt citation against Managing Editor Ben H. Reese was dismissed.

As soon as Judge Rowe's decision was announced, the newspaper's counsel prepared the necessary papers and two attorneys drove to the state capital at Jefferson City, where applications for a writ of Habeas Corpus for Coghlan and Fitzpatrick and a writ of certiorari for the newspaper were filed with the Missouri Supreme Court.

The court ordered the two newsmen freed on $500 bond each pending a hearing on Judge Rowe's contempt judgment and issued a "stop order" blocking temporarily enforcement of the fine against the Post-Dispatch.

Coghlan and Fitzpatrick had been held in custody in the office of Sheriff James J. Fitzsimmons. Judge Rowe had said in court that he "did not want these men rushed to jail without having the proper opportunity to make their arrangements."

Pulitzer, in his editorial, declared:

Sees Grave Danger

"If a newspaper is to be gagged by being haled into court to answer a charge of contempt whenever a judge has felt the sting of editorial criticism, that means the end of the power of the press to tell the people about the failures and evils of their courts. That means the end of freedom of the press."

"We do not believe that American courts or the American people will accept such a revolutionary departure from American principle. On behalf of American newspapers in general, big and little, rich and poor, powerful and obscure, we accept this challenge."

"The Post-Dispatch will continue honestly, fairly and sincerely to criticize the courts."

Brady and John P. Nick, deposed head of the Motion Picture Operators' Union in St. Louis, had been indicted jointly on the extortion charge, resulting from an alleged payment of $10,000 by theater owners in 1936 to forestall a wage increase.

Judge Rowe last Jan. 11 sustained a defense demurrer at the trial of Nick and on March 4, at Rowe's suggestion, Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller dropped the charge against Brady.

The Post-Dispatch editorial of March 5, dealing with dismissal of the Brady case, was headlined, "A Burlesque On Justice." Fitzpatrick's cartoon the next day was captioned, "Burlesque House In Rat Alley." An accompanying editorial compared Judge Rowe's action with that of Circuit Judge Ernest P. Oakley, who in a civil suit found Nick had received $10,000 secretly from the theater men and ordered him to pay the money to the union.

Reading in a low voice from a written memorandum, Judge Rowe said these publications charged "the court and the judge thereof with partiality" and tended to bring the court "into disrepute x x x."

He asserted the editorials and the cartoon specifically tended "to interfere with, obstruct and impede" the pending trial of an extortion case against Nick and Clyde A. Weston, former business agent of the movie operators' union. They are accused of accepting an alleged $6,500 "pay-off" from theater owners in 1936.

candidate the Democrats could nominate," doubting that "the third term issue in itself would be sufficient to beat him."

At the capital here, Senator Barkley (D-Ky) called the returns "quite a victory" for Mr. Roosevelt, but Senator Johnson (D-Colo) who has called upon the president for a statement of his intentions, thought otherwise. The election, he said, had "put a damper on the third term movement."

Dewey, in New York, was obviously in an exuberant mood at the Wisconsin returns. He issued a statement saying:

"I am deeply grateful to the people of Wisconsin for the confidence they have shown in me."

15,000,000 Answer Questions of Census Enumerators in Two Days

Washington, April 3 (AP)—The census bureau checked up on its enumerators by telephone tonight and found that they had counted 15,000,000 persons in the first two days.

Thus the count of the nation's estimated 132,000,000 population was going along right on schedule, officials said, except for a slight lag in the Pennsylvania flood area but the delay there was less than had been feared.

Census experts answered one of the questions that had stumped President Roosevelt when he was enumerated yesterday—whether he was a resident of Washington or Hyde Park.

Applying the rule that a person's residence is where he customarily takes his night's repose while pursuing his regular occupation, they decided that the president was part of the District of Columbia's population.

No Official Refusals

Census officials declared that citizens were cooperating generally and that not a single refusal to answer questions had been reported to headquarters so far. However there were unofficial reports of some from the field.

Rep. Reed (R-NY) joined Senator Tobey (R-NH) in balking at questions regarding income but the census people said they knew that both earned more than $5,000 a year and would just fill out the blanks themselves.

A woman at Smithville, N. J., refused to tell the enumerator anything because "Senator Tobey said on the radio that we don't have to answer any questions."

Hundreds Seek Blanks

On the other hand, hundreds of persons appeared at the Detroit census office to ask for blanks, saying they were "afraid we might be out when the enumerator comes around."

The income questions had aroused most of the congressional criticism of the census but martial queries seemed to cause concern to a number of citizens.

A housewife in Los Angeles "just didn't dare" let her husband know how many times she had been married. An actor in Boston who had been married three times had given his wife to understand there was only one "ex."

Conant Seeks Aid Of U. S. in the War

Cannington, Ont., April 3 (AP)—The Ontario attorney general, Gordon Conant, today told an audience of farmers and business men that it is Canada's duty to "do everything within our power to enlist the active support of the United States in the cause of the Allies."

Saying the success of the Allied cause "may be very doubtful" unless active participation of the United States is made effective at an early date, Conant declared:

"No sacrifice on our part will be too great if that can be accomplished."

"If the United States wants to build the St. Lawrence waterway, by all means let us join them. If they want access to Alaska over Canadian soil, there should be no hesitation in settling the matter. In fact, nothing short of impairment of our status as a sovereign nation would be too much for Canada to offer as a sacrifice on the altar of liberty and freedom."

Wants Counties To Issue License Tags

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (AP)—State Senator Louis Phipps (D-Anne Arundel) said today he would sponsor a bill in the next legislature to establish branch offices of the commissioner of motor vehicles' office in the various county seats to speed issuance of license tags.

Senator Phipps contended the arrangement would avert the usual last-minute jam in Baltimore.

In a letter to Senate President Arthur Brice, Phipps detailed his plan and asked administration support. He said a similar bill was passed by the 1937 legislature but was vetoed by the governor on grounds it was improperly drawn.

Reynaud Says He Will Not Accept 'Phoney' Peace

Tells America That Allies Are Strong Enough To Win the War

By ROY P. PORTER

Paris, April 3 (AP)—Premier Reynaud, fresh from a session with his inner war cabinet and military leaders, told America tonight that "France and England are strong enough to win" the war and will conclude no "phoney" peace with Adolf Hitler.

France has "forged the weapon" against totalitarian Germany and "now we are going to use it," he said.

Using American slang in a radio broadcast to the United States, Reynaud defined "phoney" as "counterfeit," and outlined France's purpose as follows:

No "Phoney" Peace

"From the outset 'we must finish it' has been the formula which summed up all our thoughts. And that means no 'phoney' peace after a war which is not 'phoney' in any respect."

"Hitler's Germany will not succeed in selling us that counterfeit," he continued. "Totalitarian Germany has been totally insincere. It would be madness to believe that by signing some kind of a compromise with her we should be signing anything other than our death warrant for the following day."

Reynaud paid his respects to Soviet Russia as a "betrayer" of democracy and an "accomplice" of Nazi Germany in aggression.

Every Frenchman knows that his civilization is threatened by Nazism and its Soviet accomplices, he said.

Favors Free Trade

Referring to Summer Welles' visit to Europe, the premier said that after the war "we must return to a sane conception of (free trade) exchange. I should like to exchange goods with the planet Mars if I could. For every country the vital space is the whole world."

Reynaud recalled that a memorandum from President Roosevelt, which Welles handed the French government, stressing the necessity of a liberal trade policy in international relations after the war, "has received the approval of the French government." He said the Allies, united "into one single force for war as well as for peace" would start first on disarmament after the war is concluded and then pass to economic questions.

Pneumonia Drug More Successful

New Drug Proves Beneficial to Many Patients, Report Says

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Cleveland, April 3 (AP)—A new remedy for pneumonia, which in its first trials on about 1,500 human beings in the past few months has proved better than anything previously known, was described to the American College of Physicians today.

Its greatest benefit is in causing much less nausea than other remedies, but it also has shown a definitely lower death rate.

The drug is sulfathiazole, a "relative" of the recently discovered "wonder medicine" sulfanilamide, and is the second such "relative" to prove good for pneumonia. The first was sulfaipyridine, made by adding to sulfanilamide a form of nicotinic acid. The sulfathiazole is made by adding, instead of nicotinic acid, a yellow oil called thiazol which is a broken-down form of vitamin B-one.

This latest pneumonia remedy is not yet on the market, even for sale to physicians, but since November the drug houses have been making it for trial in hospitals and clinics. Today's report was the first to cover a large number of cases of pneumonia treated.

Harrison P. Flippin, M. D., and Leon Schwartz, M. D., both of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine, told of dividing pneumonia patients in recent months into two groups. One was given the older remedy, sulfaipyridine, and the other the new sulfathiazole. One hundred and sixty-two took the former medicine, and 152 sulfathiazole.

The death rate with the new remedy was seven percent against eleven percent for the older one. This showing was considered the more remarkable because twenty-four percent of the patients in both groups had type III pneumonia, the most fatal kind.

"The senator told an audience in Cambridge that he had misgivings about the wisdom of the act when he voted for it, and that the act should be modified."

"Then he told a Baltimore city labor audience that he was not convinced that any changes were needed, and finally, he said that it, and, finally, he stated that it act can be improved to give greater benefits."

Rains in Penna. Cause New Fears In Flood Areas

Sleet and Hail Reported from Northern Counties

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 3 (AP)—Heavy rains started falling again tonight in the flood-stricken Susquehanna river valley.

The downpour, ranging from the headwaters in New York state south through the hard-hit Wilkes-Barre area of northeastern Pennsylvania, raised anew the fear of further danger which had abated with the subsiding flood waters during the day.

Sleet and hail accompanied driving rain in some sections. Hailstones were so large they broke a window.

Towanda, farther up the north branch of the Susquehanna from Wilkes-Barre, reported heavy rain that "looked as if it would keep falling all night."

Observers could not immediately calculate the possible effects. They had agreed a heavy, prolonged fall would be required to send the river back toward the flood crest that had left thousands temporarily homeless.

Intent on finding the first evidence of any reversal of the falling flood tide, emergency crews worked to further strengthen the dikes near Wilkes-Barre and Sunbury.

$25,000,000 Added to Rivers, Harbors Bill

Washington, April 3 (AP)—A Senate appropriations subcommittee voted, 5 to 4, today to add $25,000,000 for rivers and harbors projects to the war department civil functions bill, a measure which it already had increased $45,000,000 above the House-approved total.

As tentatively approved by the subcommittee, the bill calls for expenditures of $273,472,567, compared with budget estimates of $220,082,250. Chairman Thomas (D-Okla.) said the sub-committee expected to complete its action tomorrow and turn the measure over to the full committee.

The $25,000,000 added to the House-approved total of $24,000,000 for rivers and harbors was tasked on when Thomas said he broke a tie vote in order to leave the final decision up to the full committee.

The sub-committee previously had added $30,000,000 to the $70,000,000 voted by the House for flood control projects and restored to the measure $15,000,000 which had been cut out by the House for a third set of Panama Canal locks.

Thomas said the projected increase in the rivers and harbors allotment would provide funds to start about fifty new projects.

Keefe Says Reds Plot To Control The Panama Canal

Congressman Sees Danger from Communists in Event of War

Washington, April 3 (AP)—Leader of the National Maritime Union (CIO) were accused by Rep. Keefe (R-Wis) today of "convinving" agents of Stalin "to control the Panama canal, life-line of the nation's defense."

Keefe, a husky first-term congressman, shouted to the House that the union, under leadership of Joseph P. Curran, president, and Harry Bridges, was dominated by Communists and had sent a graduate of a Communist school to organize workers in the Canal zone.

"The present leadership (of the union)," Keefe declared, "have in years been secretly conniving with the agents of Stalin to exert complete control of our merchant marine, and in the event of national emergency which might involve us with the Soviet, would be in a position by means of sabotage to completely wreck not only our merchant marine but perhaps its most important adjunct, the Panama Canal."

He also criticized the war department for what he said was its practice of hiring all seamen on Panama railroad ships through N.M.U. hiring halls.

Keefe said he based his allegations on a book, "We Accuse," written, he declared, "by bona fide seamen who are opposed to the Communist control of the National Maritime Union."

The result of the Panama railroad hiring system, Keefe asserted, had been to permit the N.M.U. to place Communists in key positions aboard the railroad's ships.

Walsh To Rule on Communist Petition

Annapolis, Md., April 3 (AP)—Attorney General William C. Walsh was asked today to determine validity of a petition filed by the Communist party to place the name of Earl Browder, the party's presidential candidate, on Maryland's November general election ballot.

James W. Ford was named as the party's choice for vice president, and Dr. Albert Blumberg of Baltimore as candidate for U. S. Senate from Maryland.

Dr. Blumberg appeared recently before the Dies committee on American activities and the committee instituted contempt proceedings against him when he refused to answer questions relating to Communist membership in Maryland.

His wife, Mrs. Dorothy Blumberg, brought the petition to the secretary of state's office. She said she bore 2236 names—236 more than required by Maryland law. If the petition, the names of the party candidates will automatically go on the November ballot.

Farmer Accidentally Kills Wife with Gun

Salisbury, Md., April 3 (AP)—A. Taylor, Wilcomico county state attorney, said Daniel Maddox, 37-year-old farmer, accidentally shot and killed his wife at their home near here today.

Maddox told Taylor that he was standing in the living room of his home with a shotgun, intending to shoot stray dogs in the yard.

His wife, 70, called to Maddox and as he turned around the gun was discharged, Taylor declared.

A daughter, Mrs. Edna Anderson, told Sheriff Marvin Gordy that she ran into the room "and my father was standing by the window, with a gun still in his hand."

"It can't be so, I didn't even hear the gun cocked," the sheriff said. Mrs. Anderson quoted her father.

George McQuinn Back in Form

San Antonio, Texas, April 3 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns' fine first baseman, George McQuinn, is proving in his old form again after being out of uniform for a week because of a sciatic nerve ailment. He's due to see a lot of action when the Browns start their season with the Chicago Cubs later in the week.

Simpson Says GOP Must Prove Case To Win Election

National Committeeman Delivers an Address in Ohio

Columbus, O., April 3 (AP)—Ohio Republicans in a pre-primary convention today were bluntly told by their keynote speaker — National Committeeman Kenneth F. Simpson of New York — that they must convince the American people that "we are on the level with them."

"We will win on election day only if we deserve to win," he said before approximately 4,000 party workers and leaders, including Presidential Candidate Robert A. Taft and Gov. John W. Bricker.

"We will win only if we convince the American people that we are on the level with them and that our party is in sympathy with the legitimate hopes and aspirations of the plain American citizens who want to go to work and earn an honest living, with some measure of security and confidence in the future for themselves and for their children."

Agrees with Taft

He agreed with Senator Taft who said that the Republicans, seeking to elect a national ticket in November, should not engage in mudslinging, but should attack on the issues and offer sound remedies.

Taft, who will be the Ohio delegate's "favorite son" candidate for the presidential nomination at the Republican national convention, described the convention as significant because he said, Ohio was a leader in a nation-wide revolt against the New Deal.

He asserted that the Democratic national administration "meddles with everybody's business, and doesn't attend to its own business."

"We can remedy the abuses," Taft said, "without taking over the regulation of everything and everybody."

Replies to Charges

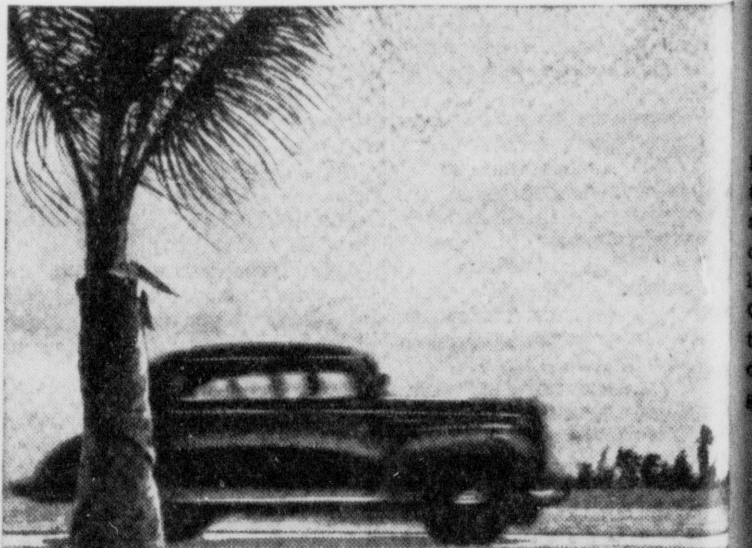

Answering political foes' charges that his administration had neglected the underprivileged, Governor Bricker said his administration turned back to the local communities in subsidies $12,869,000 more than they received in 1938.

The party harmony campaign was promoted when Dale Dunifon, Columbus attorney, was a candidate for one of the two congressional-at-large nominations. The Republican incumbents, George H. Bender and L. L. Marshall of Cleveland, yesterday were endorsed by the party's State Central Committee.

A Bill for Protection Against Bureaucracy

"SHACKLE THE DICTATORS before they shackle you!" warns the American Coalition in a campaign supporting the Logan-Walter bill pending in Congress.

The Coalition is an organization designed to co-ordinate the efforts of patriotic, civic and fraternal societies "to keep America American."

The Logan-Walter bill would impose some semblance of compliance with the law of the land upon every bureaucrat, in lieu of which he would be confronted with a possible reversal of his action by the courts.

The heart of the bill is in its Section 5, pertaining to judicial review of decisions of administrative agencies. "Any party to a proceeding before any agency or independent agency as provided in Section 4 of this act," it reads, "who may be aggrieved by the final decision or order of any agency, or independent agency, as the case may be, within thirty days after the date of receipt of a copy thereof, may at his election file a written petition (1) with the clerk of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia; or (2) with the clerk of the circuit court of appeals within whose jurisdiction such aggrieved party resides or maintains his principal place of business or in which the controversy arose, for review of the decision."

In view of many things that have occurred in Washington during the last several years, there appears need for some such restraining influence as is provided in this proposed act. "The relentless growth of administrative absolutism, the ever-expanding regulation of all types of individual activity by so-called administrative experts and the increasing tendency to regard administrative action as beyond the protection afforded by judicial review," says Senator William B. King, of Utah, "are dangers which must be faced if individual liberty is to survive in this country. Day after day, administrative officers and their subordinates are issuing rules and regulations having the force and effect of law. This 'legislation' is being enacted, not by representatives elected by the people, but by appointive officials, answerable to no one in many instances and never to an electorate."

The slogan adopted by the Coalition is quite appropriate—"Shackle the Dictators before They Shackle You!" What happened to representative government in Europe, when peoples unwisely surrendered their rights to dictators and totalitarian governments, should provide sufficient warning for the people of this republic to guard against any surrender of their rights and liberties here.

The Logan-Walters bill is meeting with stiff opposition in a quarter where such opposition counts for much. Opponents are moved by selfish considerations, of course. They want to retain all the bureaucratic power they possibly can. But citizens should give voice to their sentiments about their rights and some sensible protection of them before it is too late, as was the case in Europe.

An Impressive Phase Of the 1940 Census

ONE of the most impressive features of the 1940 census, on which work has been started, is the fact that for the first time in 160 years it will not be concerned with illiteracy. The ability to read and write English is now considered the common property of all but a negligible portion of the population. Other languages became vestigial in this country as far back as two decades ago. Many foreign language publications have since switched to the English language.

Schooling, of course, has played a great part in this gratifying cultural betterment. But the press has also played a mighty part. "It seems to us," remarks Editor and Publisher, "that the part of the newspaper in this conquest has been too little understood even by newspaper makers. The daily newspaper, printed in English, now circulates more than 39,000,000 copies; the foreign language press has added an increasing number of English language pages and departments in the past ten years. The newspaper message in the tongue of the country is now being carried into homes which as late as 1930 were rated in the census as illiterate."

That, as the craft journal says, is a long step toward a politically and economically homogeneous nation. But, as it also says, there are other steps ahead, which are to be seen in the demonstrated fact that racial groups and activities are not a healthful influence. The way to combat that influence is to carry on the crusade of Americanism.

John L. Lewis Plays The Wrong Card

JOHN L. LEWIS, CIO chieftain, has played the wrong card in his latest effort to scare the New Dealers into paying more attention to him and letting him dictate a presidential ticket and a party platform. The card so played is the threatened formation of a third political party.

Lewis's firebrand speech at Monongah, W. Va., lacked the flame it might otherwise have had had he adopted a more practicable piece of strategy. It was largely a repetition of the attitude he expressed last January at Columbus, O., when he definitely broke with the New Deal administration. But neither New Dealers nor any other group can be expected to take fright over the formation of a third party in view of the numerous failures experienced with such attempts in American political history. The New Deal propagandists are already disparaging such an instrumentality and with good logic and effect.

Other factors handicap the Lewis idea. For one thing, he cannot bring Labor into a cohesive whole as a political force when its members are now divided into two separate camps which are as hostile to each other as are the major political parties. Again, there is to be seen little mutuality of interest among the several groups with which he would form a third party. There is much less of it, for example, between the farmers and Labor than between Labor and Industry. The latter depend upon almost identically the same set of conditions for their common welfare; and the farm group cannot prosper if business and industry suffer along with Labor. The Youth Movement, too, is a rather intangible entity.

Lewis, however, has genuine cause for dissatisfaction with the New Deal trend and its disastrous results, and he is quite justified in trying to "throw the hooks" into it. Certainly with the eleven odd million he estimates as being still jobless after seven years of planning and promising to provide them with employment, no labor leader could brook continuance of policies responsible for such a situation. But he has played the wrong card this time and also has overplayed his hand.

Some of This Money Could Be Spent Now

A LOT OF THINGS could be purchased by people of this state and this nation just now were it not for the fact that they had to reach down so deeply into their pockets and otherwise scrape and in some cases borrow to get the money with which to pay greatly increased income taxes.

The Maryland state income tax was a jouncer this year. Representing a 500 per cent boost in the normal rate, a discriminatory exaction in unearned income and a lowering of the exemption which in reality made the 500 per cent boost more than it appeared, many taxpayers had to pay, or arrange to pay, anywhere from five to thirty times as much as they paid in the preceding year. One taxpayer has informed the News that he paid exactly fifty times as much!

It is well to reflect that there is quite a big difference in the payment of income taxes in both state and nation under a Democratic and a Republican administration. Certainly there is a wide gap as between the two kinds in Maryland. As for citizens generally coming under the federal income tax—and they include those socked by the state tax, too—a big disparity is to be seen by looking at the records.

The Roosevelt administration has more than doubled the income tax requirements obtaining when it came into power, as witnesseth the following comparison of net taxable incomes:

$ 1,500	$ 22.50	$ 60
2,000	30.00	80
3,000	40.00	120
4,000	60.00	160
5,000	90.00	240
6,000	120.00	320
7,000	150.00	410
8,000	180.00	500
9,000	240.00	600
10,000	300.00	700

So, as stated, a lot of things, not just luxuries but also many necessities, could be purchased now by people were it not for the depletion of the family purse caused by these exorbitant tax requirements. Certainly no relief from this constantly growing burden is in sight unless there is a change of management and a change of policy.

This country doesn't believe in the monarchical form of government, but it has more queens than the rest of the world combined. In fact, one for every college campus and vegetable or fruit festival.

Judging by the news stories on the investigation into New York's murder syndicate, the finger men must have spent the time between killings thinking up odd nicknames for their pals.

A new electric bulb cooks a steak in 10 minutes. Soon mother will be able to prepare a full meal while sitting out as dummy during a contract bridge game.

Fish can talk, says a scientist. If that's so, we can imagine a few of them boasting: "Boy, you should have seen the big presidential candidate I got away from."

"They"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

There's a force in this world more terrible than lightning, more persistent than gravitation. It weighs upon all men, it holds them down, nags at them, sneers at them, laughs at them day in and day out.

And that force is "THEY." That force is all the discouragement of the ages, all the doubts, all the fears men have ever known, all the pessimism about "the limitations of human nature."

It was never done before? "They" tell you it can NEVER be done at all.

"They" tell you you aren't big enough.

"They" say you aren't of the right sex for some job.

"They" warn you you haven't enough experience.

"They" decide that your personality is all wrong.

"They" say this and "they" say that.

"They" never advise you that you can do what any man can do, or take you by the arm and order you not to be discouraged, or lead you aside and tell you good things they have heard about you.

"They" do none of these things because they are the pressure that resents and resists the rise of men above the commonplace.

If you ask this crowd what you should do with your life you will learn nothing but pessimism, receive nothing but grief. For that crowd does not know and that crowd feels only the pressure that holds it down. . . . It has no wings for its spirit.

But if you know one man or woman in the crowd who loves you and would see you happy—if you imitate one dear being out of all the ages who was strong enough to rise above the pressure of "they"—if you have any of these treasures, then you are FREE and what "they" say to you does not count at all.

Disney Rich but Deservedly

By EDWIN C. HILL

Mickey Mouse arrives at his twelfth birthday and his creator, Walt Disney, offers 15,000 shares of Mickey Mouse stock preferred (Disney Productions, Inc., if you insist on being so literal) to the public. Disney is one of our most indispensable Americans—and who is more indispensable than a man who can make children happy and cause grownups to forget their troubles, even for a little while? Yes, Mickey is definitely in the million-dollar brackets nowadays.

Quite a come-uppance from that garage in Kansas City where Walt and Mickey first got acquainted and became fast friends. I know of no more entertaining scrap of biography than this meeting of kindred souls. When Mr. Disney was just beginning to aim at the bull's eye of success, he worked in a bare little studio over a garage in Kansas City. As he sat silently before his easel and drawing board, working on Oswald the Rabbit and other quaint conceptions, he noticed a bright-eyed mouse slipping across the bare floor occasionally and pausing now and then to regard him with an appraising eye.

Tamed Mouse

Just for the fun of the thing, Walt made up his mind to tame the little creature. He did it by animal-taming methods as old as Noah and his Ark. He never made an abrupt move. He began to talk to himself and to the mouse in gentle murmurs. He laid trails of bread crumbs to his drawing board, at his right hand, and before many months had passed the mouse was upon that drawing board, nibbling the bread crumbs and apparently criticizing, with alert eyes, Mr. Disney's artistry.

Quite naturally, Mr. Disney began to make a model of the mouse. He drew the little chap in every variety of pose. He invented little scenes, and almost without effort stories formed in which the mouse was the hero. And there and then Mickey Mouse came into being and Mr. Disney's number went up on the great board of fame.

Enormous Detail

The nature of his work, the technique of creating such animated pictures as "The Seven Dwarfs" and "Pinocchio" is incredibly detailed. It requires an enormous amount of preparatory labor. The basic idea is discussed in conference after conference by Mr. Disney and his large staff of technical men, musicians and artists. Gradually the story takes form and goes into drawing. Thousands upon thousands of drawings are made. It is said that a million drawings were made in creating "Snow White." The process is intricate and everything is done by hand.

The recording of the sound effects and the music begins as soon as the "layout" man has marked the score for the artists. In a soundproof studio, similar to a broadcasting studio, an orchestra plays the incidental music while the staff injects the dialogue and gives perfect imitations of every imaginable sound from the shattering roar of a lion to the thin squeak of a baby mouse. Then the finished drawings are photographed, one at a time, upon the film and that film is merged with the sound track containing the music.

Expense Is Heavy

Mr. Disney's income is very large, but so are the expense of his productions. Fame has come to Disney, as well as wealth. He is not a college graduate, but he has been awarded honorary degrees from institutions like Harvard. A watercolor of his hands in New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art. Besides Mickey, there have been many other Disney favorites: The Three Little Pigs, Snow White and the Dwarfs, Donald Duck, Pinocchio. In their various forms, they have made Walt Disney rich. Last year his personal earnings were $133,903, while the new income of his firm, Disney Productions, was more than a million dollars. Whatever he earns he thoroughly deserves. This genius

THE FARMER IN THE DELL

States Are Seen As Drifting Apart As the Result of Tariff Exactions

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Do our forty-eight states show a tendency toward developing into forty-eight separate countries? If they do, we shan't admit that they have done so, of course. Nevertheless, Senator C. O'Mahoney's so-called Monopoly committee was solemnly warned by expert witnesses the other day that they do show such a tendency—in effect.

Cost of War And Peace

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

The latest figures on war expenditures in Europe, as compiled by the National City Bank and reported in the current Newsweek, are something for Americans to think about. Last week Britain announced a bond issue of $1,179,000,000, to mature in fifteen years. While this was the first publicly offered loan of the war, obviously it is only a starter, since high taxes and huge temporary borrowings can no longer be relied upon. France, too, will soon have to enter the bond market for long-term borrowings. For civil and military expenditures, Britain is currently spending at the rate of about $25,000,000 a day. The total expenses of the three warring powers are about $90,000,000 a day.

Americans may stand aghast at these figures, which raise the specter of inflation over Europe even before the "real war" has begun. But Americans have no cause to feel comfortable about their own peace-time fiscal position. While we have not been caught up in the war hysteria of recent years, our Federal expenditures have risen faster than Great Britain's since 1929, even though the British have been heavily rearming now for five years. In the current British fiscal year ending March 31, war-time Britain has actually spent less than peace-time America!

If this country were to enter the European war and our per capita expenditures matched those of Britain, the Federal budget would rise from a little over $9,000,000,000 to about $36,000,000,000 a year. Perhaps that prospect will not chill the enthusiasm of the few who want to rush the United States into the war, but to the great peace-loving majority it should drive home the terrible lesson of New Deal spending.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Maryland sawmills produce annually nearly 40,000,000 board feet of lumber, valued at approximately $700,000 at the mills, according to C. F. Winslow, specialist in forestry for the extension service of the University of Maryland.

The acreage of strawberries in Maryland for 1940 is estimated at 8,300 acres as compared with 7,900 acres for last year, according to the State Crop Reporting Service.

The Maryland cabbage crop is expected to be about ten percent smaller than a year ago, it is estimated by the Maryland Crop Reporting Service.

Fruit growers of the state who need to rent or buy bees for pollination should get in touch with George Abrams, specialist in apiculture for the University of Maryland university extension service, for available sources of bees.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

Do our forty-eight states show a tendency toward developing into forty-eight separate countries? If they do, we shan't admit that they have done so, of course. Nevertheless, Senator C. O'Mahoney's so-called Monopoly committee was solemnly warned by expert witnesses the other day that they do show such a tendency—in effect.

By the way, it's quite incorrect to term that O'Mahoney outfit a "Monopoly Investigation Committee." Its real purpose is to figure out, if it can, what's the matter, if anything, with our national economics in general—not to deal with monopolies in particular.

Anyhow, it's widely agreed that the United States, in the main, has been pretty prosperous, as compared with most of the rest of the world. And even high tariff protectionists admit that its prosperity probably had been largely due to the fact that it's been the most extensive single free trade area on earth.

State Tax Barriers

But in recent years many states have adopted policies of erecting tax barriers to exclude other states' goods from their various individual markets. They don't concede that they're protective tariffs that would be federally unconstitutional, but that's what they amount to.

There's been some complaint about it, and a little less of it in the last year than previously. Still, it's quite prevalent yet.

It's a system against which a warning has just been sounded, before the O'Mahoney committee, by several first-rate authorities—notably Executive Secretary Frank Bane of the Council of State Governments and Dr. F. Eugene Melder, Clark University economist.

Senator O'Mahoney's committee is described as "temporary." Drs. Bane and Melder think it ought to be made "permanent."

They want internal tariffs abolished.

"Me First" Attitude

Dr. Bane goes farther than that. To be sure, internal tariffs are his principal grievance, but he points also to the inclination of each state to solve its local problems at the expense of all other states. For instance, state No. 1 reasons that it has to have help from the other forty-seven states. Each of the other forty-seven claims its share (or more than its fair share) from state No. 1.

Consequently, asserts Dr. Bane, individual states (trying to fill in other states) demand federal legislation of a properly purely state-wide character.

Moreover, they get it, by a process of swapping off votes on Capitol Hill—thus getting federal legislation on purely intra-state issues.

On the opposite hand, the federal governments, trying to regulate its payments to the various states, undertakes to tell said states what to do in connection with intra-state management—in violation of states' rights.

It's All Gunned Up

In this fashion, Dr. Bane's thesis is that federal and state relationships are getting all gunned up. He not only wants Senator O'Mahoney's committee to straighten them out—he wants a permanent organization to KEEP them straightened out. He asks the O'Mahoney organization to sponsor such a body. The United States supreme court is supposed to attend to the job, but Dr. Bane's story is that the supreme court is not now either rapid or thorough enough to do it.

Of course, Drs. Bane and Melder don't maintain that the United States necessarily will split up into forty-eight separate countries; there may be some groups—eight or ten or more of em.

And they won't formally separate themselves.

However, the two doctors foresee a gradual splitting up (not political immediately but economic) unless the current trend is counteracted.

The two doctors want that tendency fought.

It Has Kept Its Health, Anyway

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

A word needs to be said of the insurance investigation by the Temporary National Economic Committee. If, as some times appears to be the case, the New Deal wars against success, life insurance is doubly an offender from the standpoint of official leftists. It is not merely that it is successful. In addition, it is successful in ways that the New Deal would make its own, or that reflect on the latter's stewardship. For example, its 80,000,000 policyholders are nearly twice as numerous as the men and women into whose pay envelopes the tax collectors dip each week under promise of old-age payments by and by. The companies will keep faith with their clients; the Administration is not keeping faith with its own, spending every dime it takes from pay envelopes, planning to replace this by taxation, which will fall on workers twice. A greater cause of offense is, of course, that every policyholder is a capitalist—and, yet, potentially a "conservative" to the extent of the face of his policy and, therefore, a bar to collectivist projects wherever incubated.

American life insurance has kept its health in depressions and has ever grown in them, because it has held the confidence of the people. The alternative to the system of state regulation under which it operates would be national regulation. Of course, it would have been possible to have national regulation at the start, though not advisable. To attempt to tear down the present structure, the patient labor of several generations, and replace it with another Federal "plan," would send a chill of dismay through our whole business system. But would that bother the New Dealers? On the contrary, it may be what some of them are driving at.

There is probably no such superiority on the Western Front and whether there is not, an offense would kill so many on both sides that the toll would shock even fighting nation and the world.

Total Victory Unlikely

Whether this becomes a blood war of movement or action or white war of nerves and strangulation, neither side has much hope of coming out of it either with total victory or with enough strength left to tackle us in twenty years—especially not if we arm on the pay we have adopted.

It would be a lot safer, and cheaper for us in blood and money, to count on these things to avoid its being "our turn next" than to keep repeating that we are sure it will be until we sloganeer ourselves into another terrible time, mingling and make it our turn, only next but now, by self-hypnosis.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Morning Motto

No free government, or the blessings of liberty can be preserved to any people but by a firm adherence to justice, moderation, temperance, frugality and virtue, and by a frequent recurrence to fundamental principles.—PATRICK HENRY.

War Sloganeering Danger Is Seen

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

New York City, April 3.—We were sloganeered into the last war—least as a partial cause. "If England and France are licked our turn is next." That one pulled heavily. "This is a world war of democracy against autocracy. Our place is on the side of the democracies—they are fighting our war." Bolled down to "make the world safe for democracy" that was a honey.

There is a good deal of doubt as to whether they were fighting our war but there is none whatever that we fought theirs and did in time to win it. Then we paid a lot for it. We asked for nothing and got considerably less than that.

Thrice As Fast

About the only difference between the sloganeering approach in this war and this is that this time it is working three times as fast.

"Fighting our war" was what Jimmy Cromwell said to Canada and, while he got an official speaking, no small part of the press, the Eastern Seaboard said he spoke the truth, or at least what most Americans think.

I doubt if he spoke the truth. West of the Alleghenies at least, has been my observation that most Americans think no such thing. "Our turn will be next" is a variation of the "democracy" theme, "fighting our war" but it paid more weight. It slants toward the strategy of "self-defense" in which is something most Americans would fight for if they thought the need existed.

Nothing Minus

Our sympathies are all with the Allies but standing alone they wouldn't pull us in. We let them do that once and we know we got for it—nothing plus a minimum quantity.

It becomes very necessary then, study this "our turn next" business. In the first place "our turn" from whom? The World war is everything that has happened since shows that it takes a great superiority—maybe as much as three to one in men and materials conclusively to smash an enemy. Remember that Germany was never defeated in battle—and neither was Finland.

No Superiority

There was nothing approaching any such superiority on either side in this war—neither in being in prospect. There are possibilities of some astonishing developments, such as devastating proof of major air power—but these are growing dimmer every day. Starving or economic strangulation of Germany may be possible, but that also seems less likely as more facts become known. As that fades so also fades the likelihood of an interior revolution ousting Hitler.

There, of course, remains all the possibility of a smash across border fortifications—a suicidal blunder—but it is clear too that this would also take an overwhelming superiority at the point of attack.

Offensive Not Deadlier

Incidentally, there is a popular misconception here that such an attack would kill more men on the offensive side than on the defensive. It could if the offensive didn't have the required superiority in men and metal but not necessarily otherwise.

A study of great Twentieth Century offensives by Major Phillips in the current Infantry Journal makes the point clear.

There is probably no such superiority on the Western Front and whether there is not, an offense would kill so many on both sides that the toll would shock even fighting nation and the world.

Offensive Not Deadlier

Whether this becomes a blood war of movement or action or white war of nerves and strangulation, neither side has much hope of coming out of it either with total victory or with enough strength left to tackle us in twenty years—especially not if we arm on the pay we have adopted.

It would be a lot safer, and cheaper for us in blood and money, to count on these things to avoid its being "our turn next" than to keep repeating that we are sure it will be until we sloganeer ourselves into another terrible time, mingling and make it our turn, only next but now, by self-hypnosis.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Martha Believes That Unless You're Willing To Be Taken
In Now and Then You'll Never See the Inside of Things

BY AGNES AHERN

"Pardon me, but do you speak Russian?"

Martha Hadley's cool gray eyes swept over the prosperous and slightly pompous exterior of the man who addressed her.

"Sorry," she said, "but they didn't teach it at Vassar when I was there." She pulled her fur collar more closely about her neck, for the November wind from the lake was nipping, and glanced down the avenue. The north-bound bus was nowhere in sight.

"I didn't mean to be rude," the man apologized. He pulled out a business card and handed it to her. She noted that his name was John Cabot, and that he was from South tha said, addressing him in her flawless French. "Perhaps he can help you—"

"Ah, yes, he has a kind face," the little man interrupted in a French that was strongly spiced with a Russian accent, "that is why I ask him if he would perhaps wish to buy some jewels that once belonged to the Grand Duke Vassily."

He fumbled for a moment in his pocket and brought out a worn skin pouch. From its depths he extracted a handful of jewels—diamonds and star sapphires, emeralds green as the sea, and a ruby like a drop of concentrated fire hanging on a golden pendant.

"But those are exquisite!" she heard John Cabot exclaim over her jewels. I think we can complete the transaction."

Ivan fumbled in his pocket and brought out the kidskin pouch. Taking the bag from his outstretched hand, Martha opened the drawstring and scrutinized the jewels carefully. Then she reached into her purse and drew out—not the thousand dollars—but a small and very businesslike revolver.

"Don't move, either of you," she said crisply. "I've got you both covered." Her gun pointed menacingly in their direction. "So you thought I wouldn't notice your little substitution of a moment ago! The glass in that bag isn't worth fifty cents in any market. And as for you, Mr. Cabot, she said scathingly, "you thought no one would suspect that you and Ivan were in partnership. It was very clever of you to use real jewels for the appraisal and then substitute a bag of imitations at the last minute. But the next time you work your shell game—I'd advise you not to try it on a policewoman—"

"A policewoman!" said John Cabot furiously. "Why you—" He started toward her menacingly.

"I wouldn't do that if I were you," said Martha calmly. The pistol in her hand did not waver. "You see, I've been trailing you for months, but I thought I might need a little help at the capture. You watched me very carefully, to be sure I wouldn't say anything to the bank clerk, but you didn't notice that I wrote him a message on the withdrawal slip. She turned toward the doorway where a burly policeman seemed to appear from nowhere.

"You can take them away now, Clancy," she said with the assurance of an officer of the law who had done her duty. "And this time, for a change, they're the ones who will be left holding the bag."—Dis-

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE CULPRIT ESCAPES WHENEVER a psychic bid ad-dict gets away with an apparently impossible fine score on a deal, it encourages him to try more of the same. In the long run, it is highly questionable that he profits, in terms of net points, from the spectacular unorthodox tactics, but he undeniably gets something which the conservative bidder never can have in the same form—thrills. So perhaps he is pretty wise at that, for the main thing we all seek from the game is fun.

Better let Henry C. Meyer III, star of Union League club's champion team in New York's Inter-Club league, tell about it.

"When I heard Ed's bid of 1-Club with that vulnerability," he said, speaking of his partner, Edwin N. Moore, in the North.

"I guessed it to be psychic, especially when East overcalled. To head off a possible spade game for them, I bid the suit myself. As Ed showed strength with 3-Spades, I knew I was in for it. I tried twice to get out of trouble into No Trump. The only reason I didn't try 6-No Trumps is that I was afraid he'd go to 7-Spades."

Now for the play. West led the heart 9 to the A. The spade 2 brought out the 5, A and 9, then the 4 called out the 10, K and 6. The 3 was led and East took his Q, on which West's J fell, leaving dummy's 8 high. Thus the crazy contract was made. Mr. Meyer running nine more tricks after East returned his heart J. Hardly anybody could believe the score on the slip until it was explained.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Separation Made Him Realize

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I am a college graduate of 22. As yet I have not begun my life work, but within the next year I will have started and should be able to afford marriage.

On a trip I met a girl, the only one who has ever measured up to my ideals. The trouble is I saw her for only a few days. I didn't meet her family and know nothing of her background. She is now half a continent removed from me. It was most unfortunate that I didn't realize how I felt toward her until we became separated, and I didn't discover whether our attraction was mutual.

P. G.

What's the matter with the mails, my dear young friend? You knew the young lady only a few days and didn't during that time realize how deep was the impression she made on you. Begin to write to her. Nothing is more revealing than correspondence, and after you have become started in your life work, perhaps you will be able to visit her at her home next summer and see something of her background.

You are very wise to be interested in her environment. Your case sounds promising to me.

Finally She Became Popular

Dear Miss Fairfax:
I'm not writing to you because I have a problem, but because I'm very happy. I am 35 years of age and never until the last few years was I what would be called popular, when it came to boy friends. I had plenty of girl friends but was

However, I never lost interest in other people, read everything I could lay my hands on. Have always had to work hard and have had my share of grief.

Too, suddenly, about three years ago, I discovered that men found me interesting. Within two years three proposed to me; I married the third. And I never dreamed there could be such happiness in the world.

Everyone of these men told me he liked to hear me laugh; how he enjoyed talking to me. I was very careful about my appearance, being certain that all details were perfect. The 1939 legislature passed a law providing that only taxpayers would be eligible to vote in St. Michaels. Soon after the law was adopted an election was conducted here in which Carey was successful, but the result was challenged and the Talbot County Circuit court ruled the voting was illegal. A new election was ordered, but was not held until yesterday.

The legislative act regarding taxpayers was upheld by the court.

St. Michaels Election May Be Protested

St. Michaels, Md., April 3 (AP)—Although George W. Carey and two other town commissioners were re-elected, political observers predicted that the result would be protested on a charge that no new registration had been ordered prior to the vote.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking stress acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints of urine a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with stinging and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

April Designated As "Cancer Control Month" In Forty-six States

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

April is Cancer Control Month as provided by Congress. In 46 states the Women's Field Army Against Cancer is conducting an active educational program.

Not very long ago cancer was a taboo topic. Everyone knew it existed and nobody dared mention it. Even now it is considered an unpleasant word. But the fact that it is an unwelcome or disagreeable subject does not cancel the obligation of the writer on public health to discuss it.

The dangers which are present for the speaker or writer before the public on the subject are, first, that he will make it disgusting and, second, that he will create unnecessary fear.

The first danger need never be present. Cancer is a clean disease and not disgusting; in fact, one of the points in the fight against it is that it is so unobtrusive, it makes itself known so little, that the early stages are liable to be passed before anything is done.

As for the second danger, that of creating unnecessary fear, time has moved on so that we do not feel that way any more. There is something to be done for cancer and the earlier it is done the more effective it is. So we feel in drawing attention to cancer—its danger and its symptoms—we are not idly or unnecessarily frightening you, because we have something concrete and constructive to offer in the way of cure, which was not true a few decades ago.

I like the distinction that has been made between a health article that, instead of "scaring you to death," "scares you to life." If you are scared to the extent that you have something done to save your life, it is a good thing to scare you a little.

Hopeful Example

A hopeful example exists in the Cured Cancer Club, sponsored by Dr. Anna C. Palmer, of Milton, Massachusetts, who herself was operated on for cancer in 1920. There were 29,195 people listed by the American College of Surgeons in 1938 as cured of cancer. There must be many more.

The Cured Cancer Club is open to anyone who is vouched for by his physician as having been cured of cancer for at least five years. The applicant need only subscribe to the statement, "I am willing to be known publicly as a cured cancer patient."

This column will discuss one of

BING & BING MANAGEMENT

PAINTER RELIEVED OF NUMEROUS PAINS BY WORLD'S TONIC

Famous Medicine Assisted In Making His Work Easy Again—Stomach Distress Benefited

One of the many distressing things about common elimination ailments when affecting the intestinal tract and thereby aggravating symptoms of various ills and nervousness, is they may make drudgery out of a man's daily work and possibly put him to bed, interfering seriously with his earning power. World's Tonic, a compound of many different valuable medicinal ingredients, by playing a part in relieving many common ailments of this origin has helped take the drudgery out of work for many thousands of men and women throughout the nation.

Various pains and ailments cause a vast amount of suffering among workers, whether in shops, stores or homes. Often the results of these pains make working even in short spells, a thing of torture and misery. We don't wonder then that people aided in the search for relief from plagues of pain and suffering by World's Tonic are enthusiastic in their praise of this remarkable medicine. Again and again the World's Tonic man is giving to the public interesting facts about this modern medicine and receiving grateful thanks and praise from World's Tonic users who have been relieved from the torment of pain. Just the other day Mr. Earl Kinsley of 49 Sennett St., Morgantown, W. Va., called upon the World's Tonic man, with the following story:

"I am glad to tell of my experience with World's Tonic because this medicine surely gave me wonderful relief. I have been a painter for a number of years and at this trade a man must be on his feet for long hours at a time. You'll understand then, my suffering with aching, swollen feet and limbs, joints and dreadful back pains. This trouble started over five years ago and I suffered continually over a number of years until this medicine gave me relief. Often my feet hurt so bad I could hardly walk or stand for pain. Just before these distressing attacks, my stomach started giving me trouble. I lost appetite and had difficulty digesting what little I did eat.

"I was in a bad condition when a friend—a real friend—told me about a new medicine hereabouts, called World's Tonic. I began to take it and soon learned that the cause of my trouble was constipation. As this was speedily relieved I gradually began feeling right. Now I can eat heartily and digest my meals properly and my stomach gives me no trouble at all. The pains in my feet, limbs and back are gone and so are a lot of others. World's Tonic has made my work easy again, as of old, and I'm quite thankful for that. Tormenting aches no longer keep me awake for hours at night and I sleep soundly. I feel better and stronger in many ways and am happy to endorse this wonderful medicine."

Surely a medicine that gives such excellent results is worth knowing about. World's Tonic today is one of the most talked about medicines in America for the simple reason that it made good.

World's Tonic is good for young and old. It contains no habit forming drugs or narcotics.

Get World's Tonic at Ford, Keech, Lichtenstein, Peoples, Truitt, and Cumberland Drug and all other good Drug Stores. (E-105)

Answer: Horses are not used for glandular extracts. Plenty of glands are obtained from the carcasses of other animals at the packing houses.

In France horse meat is a common food, and special butcher shops—Boucherie de cheval—are common.

I have eaten horse meat and found it palatable, more so than venison. I do not know that it contains any more vitamins than other meats.

Raising Children Properly Is an Important Job

Wise Corrective Methods Should Be Used to Break Bad Habits

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Suppose you did not practice in your child's early years many of the principles advocated by child training experts in this column and elsewhere, but now wish you had because you have discovered in your child, say from six to twelve, some undesirable habits that are pretty well established, and the absence of certain desirable ones. What, then, is the thing to do?

What you are likely to do is to condemn yourself and suffer deep remorse; also to set about, foolishly, to make your child over all at once.

But, my fellow parent, please do not let yourself grow panicky. Don't be too hard on yourself. You have done the best you could; you have been conscientious. Anyway, the past is past.

Too Much Emphasis

Remember that articles on child training, as you find in this column, pointing out the wisdom of certain methods of handling children, and the faults of others, are not all-inclusive. Such articles are of necessity, brief, each devoted to a single topic. Consequently, in your mind some items may be given excessive emphasis, and some of your small failures may seem unduly large.

Many a parent, feeling remorse and thinking herself a most unworthy parent because of some "violation," may have had successes in relation to her children and her family life which we child guidance experts have not discussed at all. These successes may be so significant for the future welfare of the child as to render the unduly magnified failures relatively ineffectual. It is these overlooked, undiscovered items which perhaps are the explanation of why some parents, although violating most of the cherished principles of "scientific" child guidance, have children who turn out very well.

So I wish, my fellow parent, that when you feel depressed about your supposed faults as a parent, you would turn your attention to the many successes you know you have had. "Count your blessings, count them every one," is good psychology.

Let us remember, moreover, that the child from six to twelve, whether we consider him well brought up or not, has not become what he is in a few days, weeks or months. He has been developing all the years since birth. Human nature does not change all at once in the child or adult. If, therefore, we let out to make a child over suddenly, we will fail. Worse still, we will do ourselves and the child great harm through the emotional conflicts we inevitably will induce. It's better to let some undesirable habits go on undisturbed than to attempt to correct them if we are not pretty sure we have at our command the resources to get adequate results. Not only what is desirable should concern us, but what is workable. Let us often ask ourselves, "Can it be done in the light of what has gone before? Even if it can be done, will worse problems arise through its application?"

It is all very well to hold our heads among the stars provided we can keep our heels upon the ground.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. My young child gets night terrors. What should I do?

A. Have your doctor check him physically, especially his ears, nose and throat; also his diet. Strive by day to provide a calmer, more serene family atmosphere and renewal in him good routine habits, more relaxation, less excitement and fatigue. Be generous with attention and try to make him emotionally secure.

Dandruff, the Beauty Killer

HEDY LAMARR... staves off dandruff with constant care of her pretty tresses.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DANDRUFF is a horrid mess, especially when it showers down on one's bodice. Hateful, if you ask us, and if you don't. More men are afflicted with it than women, possibly because they are in the habit of moistening their ambrosial locks daily, the moist scalp inviting the tiny flakes to come along and find a home.

This trouble is caused by a germ. It is a fungus, something like yeast. It is one six-thousandths of an inch long, in case you are interested in knowing its size. What is important is that dandruff is contagious. If papa has it, mama should never use his comb or brush.

Dandruff may have no ill effects upon the growth of the hair, but it makes a grand stamping ground for infectious diseases, therefore one should make every effort to be rid of it. A recommended treatment consists of applications of hot olive or mineral oil the night before the shampoo which should be of the blandest soap, melted, and thoroughly removed with running water. Massage is desirable because it hushes up the blood streams. Brushing is necessary; it helps to keep the scalp clean.

Right in her element is the long-legged girl. She is the tall, lily-like type; fashions of the moment were made for her. The long, bouffant evening skirts are her dish, and the cunning bodices, too, with shirrings, berthas, laces, embroideries and all the other pretty sartorial nonsense. Her common trouble is thin arms. She should get a pair of Indian clubs at a store where sporting goods are sold, swing them for 10 minutes night and morning. It's swell for bust and chest development.

Friction with coconut oil will not only create a more graceful contour of the arms, but will lay a white satin finish on the skin.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Certain vegetables require the entire season for growing and maturing, while others mature in from 40 to 60 or 70 days, as the case may be. This latter group are therefore desirable for the home gardener with just a small vegetable area, for they permit the soil to be used twice in the same season instead of only once. This is called "succession cropping."

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, start early with lettuce, after which use the same soil area for late beans. Early beans can be followed by Summer turnips. Onion sets can be followed by tomatoes.

A general rule in "succession cropping" is that root crops should be followed by leaf crops, and leaf crops should be followed by root crops.

Large Scale Buying in Steels Sends Stocks Up 1 to 4 Points

Motors and Other Industrial Shares also Strong

New York, April 3 (AP)—Large-scale buying in steel, motors and other industrial shares piled up the biggest stock market volume today since the autumn boom.

Many stocks finished one to four points higher as the entire market picture brightened.

Providing what brokers called "old-fashioned leadership," United States Steel jumped 3 1/2 to 62 1/2 and Bethlehem 3 1/2 to 80 1/2, both the highest in weeks.

Transactions more than doubled the previous session's figure, totaling 1,725,240 shares against 834,930, in the busiest session since November 3 last.

The Associated Press composite of sixty stocks was up 7 of a point at 50.8, duplicating the gain of last Wednesday, which was the best since October 17.

Many brokers coupled the outburst of buying with attempts by traders to make market capital of the Wisconsin primary vote, widely interpreted in the financial district as carrying a hint of a Republican ground-swell.

Up one to more than two at the close were Chrysler, Western Union, Great Northern Preferred, Sperry, American Airlines, Celanese, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Du Pont, Dow Chemical, U. S. Gypsum, United Airlines and Westinghouse.

In the Curb, industrials were in demand. Up one to more than three were Aluminum of America, Babcock & Wilcox, Jones & Laughlin Steel, Humble Oil, Carrier and Thaw Steel. Transactions increased to 296,000 shares from 197,000 yesterday.

Dragons Take Thriller from Harris Crew

Local Five Goes
To Cage Finals
With 42-40 Win

Bill Schaidt's Long Field Goal Wins Game in
Last 10 Seconds

LaSalle Jupers, LaSalle
Midgets, Radio Shop
Other Finalists

The Cumberland Dragons, LaSalle Jupers, LaSalle Midgets and Armstrong's Radio Shop carried away honors as Western Maryland's first South Atlantic Association A.A.U. football tournament closed last night at the SS. Peter & Paul gym before 400 fans.

The Dragons, in their only engagement of the tournament, needed a Frostburg State Teachers' classy team, which played under the banner of the Harris Restaurant in the "B" division by a 42-40 victory.

LaSalle Jupers swamped Frostburg Cut Rate Perumers 43 to 0 in the 145-pound finals; the Radio Shop nipped Universal Shinglers 33-26 in the 130-pound class; and the LaSalle Midgets triumphed over St. Patrick's Aces 26-19 in the 105-pound division.

Last night's winning teams—all from Cumberland—along with the Union City, who copied the "B" title Monday by knocking the Lonaconing Big Five, will go to Baltimore Saturday to meet the finalists there for South Atlantic laurels.

Schaidt Wins Game

A long, scrapping field goal by Bill Schaidt in the last ten seconds of the game with the score deadlocked at 40-40 gave Coach Kenneth "Hank" Lindsay's Dragon unit its victory in the best game of the tournament.

The battle was bitter from beginning to end and the tense excitement in the last period, when only a few points separated the teams, had the fans standing and cheering wildly.

The Dragons took the lead as the game began, and except at one stage when the figures were knotted at 17-17, held it until the Harris crew with a brilliant scoring spree caught them midway in the second period.

Frostburg held a nine-point advantage at the halfway mark but relinquished the lead right after the fourth period got underway when the Dragons, fighting savagely, stepped ahead at 33-31. The score at the end of the third quarter was 31-29, Harris.

Ed Athey tied the score by looping two fouts as the final session started and "Hank" Rowan dumped in a goal immediately after to make the score 33-31 in favor of the Dragons. The locals stayed out in front until Joe Wagner pocketed a basket from under the hoop for Frostburg with 1:30 to go in the game to tie the score at 40-40.

Rowan Sets Record

Center Ted Rowan, in pacing the LaSalle Jupers to an easy victory in the third game on the card, set a scoring record for the tournament with 21 points. The previous mark was held by Oberlin Chaney of the Frostburg Faraday Post quint who tallied 20 markers against the Cumberland Moose in the second round of the tourney.

The Jupers were ahead all the way, the quarter scores reading 14-2, 17-7 and 29-15. Joe Nolan was high for the losers with eight counters.

The Universal Shinglers rallied in the last two frames to make things interesting for the Radio Shop after the winners had piled up a big advantage in the first and second quarters. The Radio Shop was ahead 14-6 at the quarter and 18-8 at the midway point but a 12-point spurge by the Shinglers in the third canto cut the Radio quint's margin to one point at 21-20 as the third round ended.

Bill Winters was the chief scorer for the winners with 13 tallies, while Howard Nesbitt gathered 12 points to take top honors for the losers.

With Joe Devitt showing the way with 13 points, the LaSalle Midgets took the lead with the opening whistle against the St. Patrick Aces and stayed in front over the full route. Quarter scores were 12-6, 13-13 and 26-14. Bob Frame topped the losers with 13 counters. The lineup:

New York, April 3. (AP)—The New York Rangers, paced by Bryan Hextall, overpowered the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6 to 2, tonight to gain their second straight victory in the final play-off series for the Stanley Cup and the World Professional Hockey championship.

Plans Completed
For Tri-County
Baseball League

Circuit Will Be Composed of Six Clubs in 1940
Season

The Tri-County Baseball League will operate with six clubs in 1940 with Rainsburg replacing Keyser. Plans were completed at a meeting held here Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. for the fourth consecutive season of the circuit, and it was agreed to open the season May 5.

Four of the six teams which have franchises sent representatives to the meeting Tuesday night and all posted the $15 entry fee.

The following teams will be members of the League:

Cumberland Old Germans, Flintstone A. A., Gransville Reds, Barreille Melody Makers, Paw Paw (W. Va.) Boosters and the Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox.

Representatives of the Green Spring, W. Va., club applied for a franchise but the application was rejected because an eighth club was not available. Last year Green Spring was a member of the Hampshire county (W. Va.) circuit, but so far no steps have been taken to organize that loop for the 1940 season.

League representatives voted Tuesday night to play a twenty game schedule with all games being played on Sundays. The schedule will be drawn for approval at a meeting to be held at the Y.M.C.A. for April 19.

A split season will be played with the winner of the first half meeting the second half winner in a post-season series for the league championship.

Each club will submit names of two umpires for approval at the next meeting. The Goldsmith ball was adopted and player contracts were discussed.

Representatives attending the meeting were:

Carlton Livengood, Rainsburg; Russell Dolly, Flintstone; John Hefer, Cumberland Old Germans; H. R. Robinette, Paw Paw; Barreille and Gransville were not represented.

Often Fears Bullies

If it is fear of one or more bullies, the problem may be very big. Indeed, sometimes several of these bullies will gang up against a boy, making his life miserable, especially on the way from school. In this event a conference with the teacher might be desirable. Occasionally the teacher will hold the chronic bullies at school until the smaller, weaker and more timid children have arrived home. While this may work well at times, the bully will often "get even" with your child and you in the neighborhood.

Try to get into the good graces of the bully. Working with the school, you might discover ways of helping the bully find satisfactions through wholesome outlets.

You might help your child through boxing lessons, so he will be more ready to defend himself when attacked. Even though he might not have the strength to gradually gain the tude for self-defense against bullies later.

THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"IT OBVIOUSLY was not as impossible for Mr. Strickland to have committed this murder as some people seem to think," the coroner commented. He threw a glance of triumph. Captain McDonald.

I might have collapsed, except for the press of people around me. The room was reeling.

"However," the coroner continued, "we must look into all angles." He asked his witness, "Mr. Berry, did you see Montclair go out into the garden shortly after Strickland went upstairs?"

"Yes, but I didn't think anything about it at the time."

"Why not? That is positive evidence that Jerry Montclair was alone with the jeweler a few minutes before he was found dead."

"But there was no murder then—I mean, we didn't know about it then. A lot of us had gone out into the garden earlier, before the overhead lights were switched off."

"Could anyone have remained out there?"

"I suppose so, but I thought everyone was accounted for."

The coroner didn't reply. We all knew the answer. Everyone at the party had been around the piano, with the exception of Jerry and me.

Poor Jerry was due for more questioning. The coroner called him, and Jack Berry stepped down.

Jerry was even more nervous than before. I guessed that someone had been explaining to him what a fix he was getting himself into. He fingered the buttons on his coat.

"You are certain that Markham was alive when Strickland went upstairs?" Silver asked him.

"Yes, sir, Markham was looking up at the sky."

"And you were the next person to go out into the garden where Markham was?"

"I—I thought I was. It was only a couple of minutes later I went out. Al wasn't standing there any more. I couldn't see him. I started walking across the court to look for him. I must have turned to look behind me—I know I heard a sound—and I stumbled over Al beside the lily pond. He was lying on his back. It looked like he had just fallen and was hurt. I said, 'What's wrong, Al?'"

"Yes, I know," interrupted the coroner. "Tell us what you meant — you thought you heard a sound behind you?"

"Well, it wasn't exactly behind me. It seemed to be above me. I—I really couldn't locate it, sir."

"What kind of sound?"

"A swishing—through the air."

"Was that all? You didn't hear anything else?"

"I don't know. Just at that minute I stumbled over Al. I forgot all about the sound then."

"Could it have been a bird?"

"I don't think so. There was a sort of hiss."

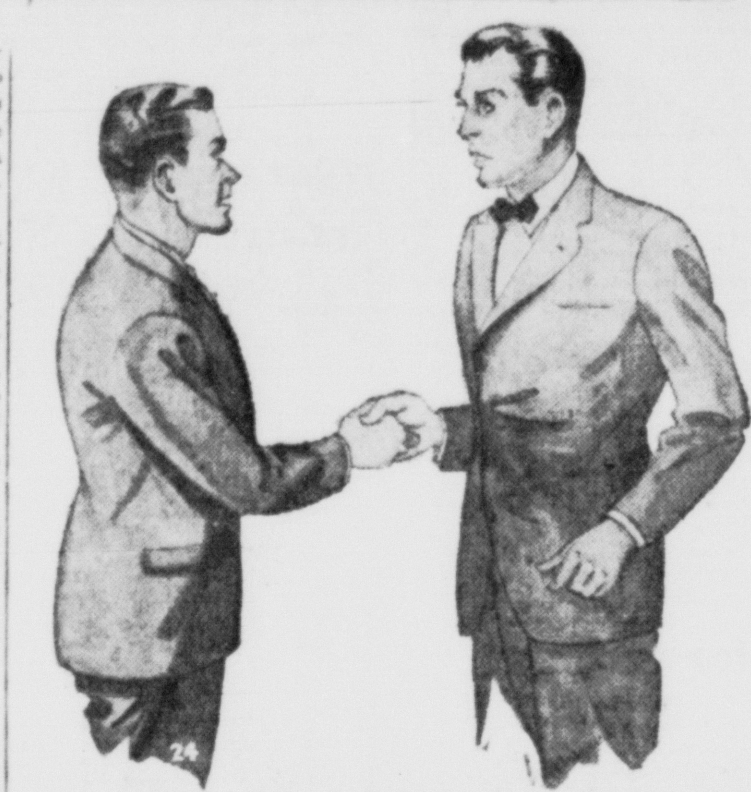

This new testimony apparently was a surprise and a puzzle to the coroner. He dismissed Jerry and called several other witnesses to ask if they could offer any explanation. No one could.

I seemed to be forgotten. All attention was centered on Jerry, although a few minutes earlier I had thought I was as good as convicted.

It was not until Captain McDonald took the stand, was sworn in and began to testify that I was brought back into the case.

"And you looked at all the windows facing on the court?" the coroner asked him.

"Yes. They were all locked. They were all dusty, too. No one could have opened them that night without leaving a mark of some kind in the dust, and there were no marks. Only exception was the window in the upstairs bathroom, which was wide open."

Coroner Silver surprised me by stepping down and advancing toward me.

"Could anyone have climbed out the bathroom window on a rope and back up again—or could he have used the wire that held the electric lights on which to climb? I believe the north end of the wire was fastened near that window."

Captain McDonald shook his head. "The ground below the window was all freshly spaded the afternoon before, and there was not a mark on it. No one could have gotten out of that window without leaving tracks there."

"One of the previous witnesses has testified about the light well. Did you investigate that?"

"Yes. We decided that was the way Strickland climbed down into the garden to look for the knife he had dropped. But we also learned that during the time when Markham must have been killed, Tony Pappini, the cook, and Agatha, one of the maids, were sitting in the kitchen."

It was the coroner's turn to be taken aback. Captain McDonald was throwing a monkey wrench into the coroner's theory, and my heart leaped with new hope.

"You mean," said Silver, "that in your opinion it was impossible for Strickland to have killed Markham?"

"Obviously."

The coroner dismissed him and looked around the room. "Are there any other persons who wish to testify?"

There were no others. He gave the case to his jury.

"You now have all the facts so far as we know them," he announced. "We have gone into this in unusual detail because of the prominence of the victim. To summarize: Alfred Markham, popular young jeweler with a reputation for a good character and no known enemies, is found lying dead in the Rio Vista clubhouse garden shortly before 11 o'clock, by Jerry Montclair, who says he went out to see him about some diamonds for an engagement ring. The diamonds were hidden in the collar of Mark-ham's coat and were still there when officers searched the body.

"The doctor has testified that Markham was stabbed to death from in front by some sharp instrument on which were grains of soil. A broken croquet mallet with the place Markham had been standing in the rose arbor. A stool was missing from the arbor and an electric light wire overhead had been torn down. Marks on the walk indicated that the jeweler had been killed in the rose arbor and dragged beside the lily pond, where he was found lying face upward."

"All members of the party had been in the parlor at the time of the killing, except Strickland and possibly Montclair, witnesses say. During the investigation Strickland climbed down by way of the light well to retrieve his knife, which he had dropped in the garden, and which he thought would be evidence against him. He was attacked by someone hiding in the bushes and was taken away in a boat and made prisoner in a warehouse, from which he escaped, he has told the newspapers."

"Captain McDonald has testified all windows but one were locked, and there were no footprints under that window and no footprints, except Strickland's, between the river and the scene of the crime."

"That is all, unless you have questions."

There were no questions. The jury retired into the next room.

Coroner Silver surprised me by stepping down and advancing toward me with hand outstretched.

"I fear I must apologize, Strickland," he said. "I'd been banking on that light well. Captain McDonald has removed the last doubt of your innocence."

My mouth was open, I believe, as I shook his hand.

The jury returned and handed Coroner Silver a written verdict. He read it and announced to the assembly. "It is the decision of the jury that Alfred Markham came to his death by being stabbed through the heart with a sharp instrument by a person or persons unknown. Murder. The case now is out of my hands. I hope the police can find the missing clues."

Child Who Plays Sick Discussed By Physician

Suggests Putting Youngster to Bed for Entire Day

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

On several occasions in this column I have proposed a corrective program for the child who plays sick in order to stay home from school. I have advised that if the child says he is sick, you should take his temperature and call the doctor if he has a fever; that if his temperature is normal, you should still take the youngster at his word, put him to bed and make him remain there all day, with not too much attention or good food.

I shall continue to give this advice. But questions from my class at the university recently and from a service club I addressed not long ago have prompted me to add something. I want to urge the parent to try to find out why the child wants to escape school, and then remove the cause, if possible.

May Dislike Teacher

The child may dislike the teacher. He may be falling in one or more studies; learning at school may be hard for him and he may have had humiliating experiences over it. He may have had unhappy experiences with other children. More likely than not, it is a bully he fears.

In case it is the teacher, he probably has told you about it. If you hurry off in a rage to see this teacher, abuse her to the child or show emotions in any other way over the matter, you will make things worse. Pray first for peace, self-control and wisdom. There may be traits about that teacher you can't change in spite of all the tact, patience and wisdom you can exercise. Then, unless your child can be sent to another school, which probably wouldn't be wise, you will want to help the child adapt himself to this teacher.

If your child's feelings have been hurt by one or several other children all windows but one were locked, and there were no footprints under that window and no footprints, except Strickland's, between the river and the scene of the crime.

"That is all, unless you have questions."

There were no questions. The jury retired into the next room.

Coroner Silver surprised me by stepping down and advancing toward me with hand outstretched.

Survey of Stream Pollution Will Begin Soon

Pittsburgh, April 3. (P)—A survey of the pollution conditions in the 140,000 square miles of the Upper Ohio river basin, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, will begin within the next few weeks. E. S. Tisdale, sanitary engineer for the U. S. Public Health Service has disclosed.

Tisdale told members of the chamber of commerce and the civic club of Allegheny county the survey, under joint supervision of the public health service and army engineers, now is completing collection of data in the 50,000 miles of Middle Ohio basin, conducted from main headquarters in Cincinnati.

A floating laboratory, the "Kiski" will be supplemented by two trailer laboratories, small motor boats, and automobiles. A score of biological and hydrometric experts will work in this area, which includes the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers and tributaries.

No Kicks Encountered By Census Enumerators In West Virginia Area

Princeton, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—Two refusals have been encountered by the census takers in West Virginia, Director John Lennon said, and they haven't really reached the stage of being refusals yet. Commenting that "it isn't a refusal until they refuse Washington," he said he had reports of only one difficulty so far.

One was a laborer who refused to give his income to the enumerator and asked for one of the envelopes which may be used to send the information in such cases.

In another, a woman declined to answer questions asked by a woman enumerator and when she found the enumerator must mail the envelope, she decided, saying she had "talked it over with my husband."

The enumerator offered to walk to the woman to the postoffice to mail the letter, Lennon said, but she still said she would "have to talk it over."

Lennon also disclosed today the number of enumerators working in the counties in the seven congressional districts. They are: First District—Hancock 33, Brooke 10, Ohio 65, Marshall 34, Wetzel 18, Boone 51, Taylor 13.

Second—Monongalia 35, Preston 11, Barbour 13, Randolph 10, Pocahontas 9, Webster 11.

Third—Harrison 39, Doddridge 10, Calhoun 8, Gilmer 8, Clay 17, Upshur 15, Braxton 15, Wayne 46, Nicholas 16.

Fourth—Tyler 11, Pleasants 5, Boone 17, Jackson 11, Roane 15, Clay 6, Wood 38, Putnam 14, Calhoun 16, Wayne 24, Lincoln 14.

Fifth—Worming 11, Menno 24, Powell 51, Mercer 45, Summers 10, Monroe 10, Greenbrier 33.

the best combinations the genuine rancher-hands of the film were able to put in the field.

Charles Bickford, red-haired and husky, was usually busy cracking a bull-whip. In the picture, Bickford, cast as Slim, had to flick a horsefly from the ear of a mule that is barely within commuting distance. He did pretty well with the whip.

Noah Berry, Jr., who played Whit, a ranch-hand, went in for rope tricks, and anybody who walked within lassoing distance of him was liable to find a rope draped around his neck.

Tropical Bandit War Is Subject of Picture

How an American girl in the tropics unwittingly brings about the undoing of a renegade chieftain terrorizing the natives of a Central American country provides suspenseful action in "The Marines Fly High," starting today at the New Liberty theater.

Co-starring Richard Dix, Chester Morris and Lucille Ball, the film revolves around the efforts of a Marine detachment, in which Dix and Morris are lieutenants, to aid the Latin authorities capture a blood-thirsty outlaw preying upon outlying cocoa plantations.

Lucille Ball, portraying an American plantation owner, is the cause of romantic rivalry between the two flying Marines. When she is captured by the sinister bandit they desperately set out to save her, baffled by mystery and beset by hidden dangers.

How the two "leathernecks" overcome the obstacles, unravel the mystery and at the same time manage to crush the renegade and his guerrillas after a thrilling gun battle, brings this fast-paced adventure drama to its gripping conclusion.

Armies Are Pictured In Garden Feature

Paramount's commissary department had two armies to feed during the filming of the Rudyard Kipling story "The Light That Failed," starring Ronald Colman, now at the Garden theater. There was the British army and an army of native Sudanese—and could they eat!

But every cloud has its silver lining. The lining in this case was the fact that the two-hundred mounted men assembled by Paramount to play the part of the British army, are members of New Mexico's National Guard and knew how to be fed.

The two armies are used in sequences depicting the celebrated

G.O.P. Spirit of Defeatism Must Be Overcome, Broening Says

Must Jack Up GOP Registration, Candidate Says

Former Baltimore Mayor
Cheered by Young
Republicans

Frostburg, April 3.—Declaring that he is a candidate for the U. S. Senate for Maryland on the Republican ticket because he had been urged by eighteen ward executives of Baltimore City and party workers all over the state to lead the party, Former Mayor William F. Broening, tonight, said that he entered the race because he had been honored by the Republican party more than any other man in Maryland, and hence owed the party the greatest debt of gratitude.

The former mayor explained that by reason of his political experience gained by two terms as mayor of Baltimore and two terms as prosecuting attorney of the city, he possesses a background of public service which in the opinion of party leaders makes him the logical man to participate in a party primary which he said should be of the party good rather than harm by stirring up interest among the voters.

Must Revitalize Party
The thought that Baltimore City now has a Republican registration of about 72,000 as against 110,000 four years ago makes it obvious that something has to be done to revitalize the party, he said.

This decrease in Republican registration in Baltimore and the lowering of the morale of the party is due to a spirit of defeatism, Mr. Broening declared and added that the terrific battle being waged by two powerful factions in the Democratic party, this spirit of defeatism can be changed to a fighting spirit which will lead to Republican victory.

He recalled that in 1911 when Phillips Lee Goldsborough was the Republican candidate for governor of Maryland, the Democratic party was hopelessly split. The same conditions exist today, he said, and a Republican candidate for the United States Senate can win this year.

Congratulates Club
Mr. Broening congratulated the members of the Young Men's Republican club for its social and political activity and told of his own work as a young man then as a watcher in a South Baltimore District in 1895 he helped to elect the late Lloyd Lowndes, of Cumberland, governor of Maryland.

Mr. Broening was introduced by Darrell Zeller, president of the Frostburg club. At the conclusion of the former mayor's address, Republican Congressional Candidate A. Charles Stewart, of Allegany county and Frank Long, of Montgomery county, were introduced and made brief addresses.

Mr. Broening was accompanied here by Charles H. Linville, Baltimore, a former resident of Garrett county and treasurer of the Broening campaign.

Among the out-of-town Republicans here for the evening were: Charles M. See, member of the Maryland legislature, and his brother, L. B. See, Judge Van Meter of the Orphans Court; Nelson W. Rusler, Edgar Lewis, and County Treasurer Frederick C. Dreyer, of Cumberland.

The meeting was largely attended and Broening was given a rousing ovation at the conclusion of his address.

The program included motion pictures and a buffet luncheon.

Federal Hospitalization For Relief Clients To Be Discussed by Association

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—The problems of Federal-State hospitalization for relief clients will be taken up by A. W. Garnett before the Carolinas-Virginias Hospitals Association, the public assistance director said today.

Garnett, head of the West Virginia department, said he would discuss a lack of "proper" Federal provisions for hospital care of classified relief clients and marginal income groups.

The Federal appropriation is sufficient for the work, he said, but the Federal regulations will not permit any specific designation for the money handed the clients—aged, blind and dependent children. By "marginal income groups," Garnett said, he referred to those whose income is not low enough for relief but not high enough to allow proper hospitalization.

Garnett said he would address the association meeting at Winston-Salem, N. C. Friday.

Rep. John Kee Files

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—Representative John Kee, of Bluefield, veteran Democratic congressman, filed today with the secretary of state for renomination. He now is serving his fourth consecutive term in the House.

Kee, who represents the Fifth District, first was elected to Congress in 1922 and was re-elected again in 1924, 1926 and 1928. He is a member of the House committee on Foreign Affairs.

Counties in the Fifth District are Mingo, Wyoming, McDowell, Mercer, Summers, Monroe and Greenbrier.

Logan Man Killed By Shotgun Blast

Logan, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—An unemployed coal miner, wounded when he interfered in another man's argument with a woman, balanced a shotgun in one hand and killed him yesterday. State Police Sergeant W. E. De Moss reported today.

Henry Garland, 45, was shot twice in the arm when he reached for the shotgun to protect Minnie Mendez, about 35, after Comfort H. Hall, 30, also a coal miner, pulled a pistol during an argument between Hall and the woman. De Moss said, Garland then shot Hall and killed him, the officer added.

The officer related that the woman went to Garland's house to get some belongings which were stored there and Hall followed to demand that she return home with him. She refused and the shooting followed. De Moss said a murder charge has been filed against Garland, who is in a hospital.

Forest Fire Losses Slight This Year

Charleston, W. Va., April 3 (AP)—Forest fires in West Virginia are running approximately 90 per cent behind last year because of spring forest fire season weather that is "almost made to order," the conservation commission said today.

Secretary C. W. Arbogast reported heavy rains have kept the number of fires to less than 100 since the beginning of the season March 20, compared with approximately 1,000 in the same 1939 period.

Registration Day Set for April 15 At Midland

Primary Scheduled for April 22; Election
May 13

Midland, April 3.—The mayor and council met in regular session Monday night in the town hall. It was decided to designate April 15 as municipal registration day.

Hours for registration will be 9 a. m. to 12-1 p. m. to 5 and 7 to 9. Registration officers, appointed by the officials, will be James Bampton and James Langan and the place of registration will be the town hall.

The primary election will be held on April 22 at 8 p. m. also in the town hall. This event will be carried out in the old convention style. Any citizen is eligible to nominate any registered voter of the town for the offices open. If more than two nominees are nominated for mayor or six for councilmen an elimination is held by those present by secret paper ballot.

Offices to be filled will be mayor, three councilmen, town clerk and secretary to board of health. The latter office will naturally remain with Dr. R. M. Shelton Jr., as he is the only town doctor.

The office of councilmen is for two year term and three men are elected each year to fill the panel of six. Incumbents elected last year and who will remain in office until next year are Edward Smith, James Bampton, and John Grimes. The councilmen whose terms expire this year are Edward Elmentrout, John Carr and Hugh O'Rourke.

The general election will be held on May 13. A general election has not been necessary here for a number of years because of insufficient nominations.

A tax collector, treasurer and town attorney is appointed in June by the mayor and council.

Mayor Veri Ash reported to the council that he had conferred with the Allegany County Commissioners and with Resident Engineer Tarring of the WPA and that the plan for a WPA work project on a proposed flood wall along George's Creek has been definitely eliminated.

Mr. Tarring told the mayor that the Paradise street project would be re-worked to remedy its condition but that no new projects will be started anywhere in the county.

A motion was carried to hire two men to clean the drain in front of the residence of James G. Blair. Mr. Blair appeared before the officials and stated that the drain had become so blocked that each rain sent a flood of water onto his property which greatly deteriorated it.

It was decided to set aside a week at the next meeting to be designated as clean up week here.

Mine Workers Have Smoker at Midland

Local No. 6012, United Mine Workers of America, held a smoker in the Firemen's Hall on Monday night in celebration of Mitchell day.

Approximately 150 persons were present. A banquet was the first order of business and a program was presented after everyone had eaten plentifully. Vocal numbers were rendered by David Williams, Frank Blair, and Felix Foote as soloists and Beatrice and Gertrude Merbaugh as a duet.

Short talks were given by Felix Foote and Nathaniel Dunn, president of the local union. Harry Robertson acted as master of ceremonies. Betty Smith played several selections on the accordion. William Robertson and Jack McGee played for dancing which followed the regular program. The affair was capably handled by a committee consisting of Frank Beveridge, chairman, Frank Gray, Thomas Clise, Joseph Siegler, Harry Robertson, Gilbert Robertson, Andrew Watson and Salem Loar.

Radcliffe Backers Confer at Gunter Hotel, Frostburg

Prendergast Elected County Campaign Chairman at Gathering

Frostburg, April 3.—The campaign to renominate U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe on the Democratic ticket was launched last night in Allegany county when fifty Radcliffe supporters held an organization meeting at the Gunter hotel in Frostburg.

M. F. Prendergast, county chairman of the Radcliffe campaign and a member of the Maryland Publicity Commission, presided at last night's session where the workers concurred that public sentiment in Allegany county is overwhelmingly for Senator Radcliffe.

The supporters last night laid plans to further that sentiment throughout the county.

Due to the storm, not all the workers who intended to be present were able to attend last night's meeting. Calls from Radcliffe backers in Westport, Midland and other towns were received at the Gunter hotel.

Francis E. Weightman, of the Radcliffe headquarters in Baltimore, was present at the meeting which selected Prendergast as county campaign chairman. Weightman spoke on Senator Radcliffe's plans for the campaign.

Others who gave talks included James Stakem, Patrick E. Kean, Joseph H. Griffin, Simon F. Reilly, Alvin E. Yaste, Samuel Weatherholt, John J. Clark and Peter J. Carpentieri.

Plans were made to make a trip to Baltimore next week to visit the Radcliffe headquarters. Other county officers will be named at a committee meeting next week.

Radcliffe supporters who attended last night's meeting were most enthusiastic over the prospects, Prendergast said.

Barton Scouts To Plant Trees

2,000 Red, Short Leaf Pines Sent by Forestry Department

Barton, March 3—Barton Troop 25, Boy Scouts of America, today received from the state department of forestry 2,000 red and short leaf pine trees ten to twelve inches high. These trees were distributed to all parts of Barton and surrounding territory where they were planted under the written agreement that certain parties were responsible for taking care of the same.

The members of the troop also planted hundreds of trees on community lots and hillside where they felt that it would help beautify the community in years to come. Last year the Barton troop planted 1,000 smaller pine trees of a different variety. These trees are purchased with money earned by the troop as a whole, and distributed free.

William Paul Cooper, scoutmaster, said that the troop is glad to do this for the community in appreciation of their wholehearted support during the last two years.

The next activity of the troop, Mr. Cooper said, will be to plant a tree in the town, early in May, as they have done during the last two years. Last year, he said, the scouts removed eighteen truckloads of rubbish and debris to the city dump.

DESIRABLE MODERN West Side

CIO Carpenter Beaten, Four AFofL Men Jailed

Warrants Issued On Serious Charge Of Conspiracy

Rivalry between the CIO and the AFofL, fanned by a bitter pamphlet warfare, flared into open violence early yesterday morning when a CIO construction worker was brutally beaten by a gang about a block from his home.

The victim was Robert G. Nazelrod, 48-year-old carpenter, of 206 Charles street, a charter member and official of the CIO construction workers union.

Four AFofL unionists, accused of the attack, were being held in the city jail last night. They were booked as "held for investigation," but the state's attorney's office said they would be charged with conspiracy to assault.

Round Up Continues

Two of the men, Leroy DeVore, of 229 Oak street, and William Rudolph, of 317 Fifth street, both members of the AFofL Teamsters and Chauffeurs union, were arrested and jailed at 2:30 a. m., shortly after the assault.

A third man, Charles Stutzman, of 138 Bedford street, was arrested at 10:40 a. m. Stutzman, formerly of Johnston, Pa., came here about two months ago to serve as acting business agent for the Teamsters union during the illness of Business Agent C. E. Bramble.

A fourth man, Kenneth Rasbaugh, of 917 Virginia avenue, another member of the truck drivers union who was supposed to have been in the attacking party, was arrested last night at 9:05 o'clock.

Victim Badly Beaten

Nazelrod suffered severe gashes over the right eye and bruises about the head. He claimed one of the men hit him with a "club about eight or ten inches long."

In addition, a bone in his right shoulderbone was believed to be chipped, and he suffered bruises and abrasions about the arms and legs. X-rays of the shoulder are to be taken today.

He was treated at Allegheny hospital. His face still bore the marks of a vicious attack last night, and he was unable to use his right arm.

Nazelrod was indignant over the attack.

No "New York Stuff" Wanted
"We can't have that New York stuff here in Cumberland," he said. "I'm just trying to make an honest living."

The attack apparently grew out of the twin-dispute at the L. Bernstein furniture store, where CIO construction unionists took over the remodeling job after AFofL workmen refused to cross the picket line of the Teamsters union, whose members are on strike.

Nazelrod had worked on the remodeling project for a week, but had been temporarily laid off early last week.

Nazelrod said he had conferred earlier in the evening with Albert Cava, of Washington, CIO organizer; John "Jumbo" Guinard, president of the CIO construction union; and James Blackwell, editor of the Voice of Labor, on union business.

After the meeting, the men adjourned to LaNeve's for a drink.

Trouble Starts In Tavern
There, a dozen-odd AFofL unionists attempted to start trouble, according to Nazelrod. Nothing came of it, however, and peace prevailed until LaNeve's closed.

Outside, the AFofL group again sought to cause a fight, Nazelrod said. He called Officer James J. Condon, who told the entire crowd to break up.

Nazelrod started to walk home. As he started down the street, Cava said he saw several men pile into a cream-colored car, which he identified as Stutzman's.

The carpenter had gotten to the corner of Henderson avenue and Glenn street when he heard a car race up Glenn.

"Then I heard somebody running," Nazelrod said. "And the first thing I knew, one of the men hit me on the head, over the eye. He had a club about eight or ten inches long."

Claims Death Threats
"They grabbed me and hit me some more. One of 'em said, 'We'll stop your scabbing and crossing our picket line.'"

Then they dragged him up Glenn street toward the cream-colored car, Nazelrod went on.

They talked threateningly of "taking me for a ride I wouldn't come back from." Nazelrod stated. One of the men said, according to Nazelrod, "Let's take him out and kill him. That'll stop his scabbing."

Breaks Loose and Runs
Nazelrod, thoroughly scared, appealed to the men. "Let's talk this over and reason it out," he said he told them.

At this, one of the men cursed him, told him to shut up and smashed his fist into his mouth, gashing his lip, Nazelrod asserted.

The captive watched his chance. One of the men holding his arm was "pretty drunk," he stated, and momentarily loosened his grip. Suddenly, Nazelrod wrenched free, knocked the man down and yelled.

His captors fled as two young men appeared across the street.

Calls for Police

Steel Knuckles Used In Phone Bill Fight, Victim Charges

Fred Emerick, of Barrelville, charged with striking Vernon Hockenberry in the face with steel knuckles, was released from the county jail yesterday after posting $500 bond. He will go before the April term grand jury on an assault charge.

According to county officers, Monday's row started over forty cents Hockenberry allegedly owed Emerick for telephone calls.

Angered over his inability to collect the debt, Emerick planted himself on the Mt. Savage road near the viaduct in the Homewood Addition, the officers said.

When Hockenberry came along Emerick blocked his path and demanded his money back. Blows followed and Hockenberry's face was cut by the steel knuckles, he charged.

Emerick was apprehended after Hockenberry told his story to county officers.

Decision Delayed On Assessments

West Side Residents Protest in Baltimore

The State Tax Commission opened a hearing yesterday in Baltimore on appeals from the assessments placed on three pieces of residential property in the 500-block of Washington street here.

Owners of the three properties, former Judge Albert A. Doub, Joseph B. Finan and McMullen Brothers, contend the properties were assessed for more than they could realize in cash value and that they were assessed out of proportion to other properties.

About twenty-five Cumberland residents who would be indirectly affected by the outcome of the appeals attended the hearing also.

The commission withheld decision in the matter and set the case down for argument later in the month.

The county commissioners, before whom the protesting citizens had appeared previously, were present, along with Clerk R. Mason Hill and State Supervisor of Assessments, Somerville Nicholson.

The county officials remained in Baltimore for a conference today with the State Roads Commission.

Police officers remained in the city to guard the protesters.

Lowndes Calls On Broening

Candidate Visited In Hotel Room

William F. Broening, of Baltimore, candidate for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate, arrived in Cumberland yesterday at 1 p. m. and spent the afternoon chatting at the Port Cumberland hotel with local Republican leaders, and reporters who dropped in to see him.

Among the Cumberland Republicans who visited the former Baltimore city mayor and state's attorney in his hotel room were T. G. Lowndes, a possible candidate for the Senate himself; Col. George Henderson, county Republican chairman; James M. Conway, city tax collector; G. Philip Roman, Col. Nelson Russler, David W. Sloan, and others.

Mr. Broening, affable and optimistic, told reporters that "we've got to lick this attitude of defeatism that has crept into the Republican party in the last few years."

The candidate declared the Republicans had a very good chance to steal the show in Maryland, but that registration would have to be boosted and this defeatist attitude licked.

"We're counting on this rock-ribbed Republican county up here to do a lot," Mr. Broening said.

Both the candidate and the treasurer of his campaign, Charles H. Linville, of Baltimore, declared that plenty of support was being swung to the Broening band wagon in the City of Baltimore.

Last night Mr. Broening was given a rousing welcome at Frostburg by the members of the Young Men's Republican Club.

The result of the first twenty-four hours of effort will be shown as team captains report contributions obtained by their workers to division leaders. All workers, captains and section and division leaders are to attend the session.

At campaign headquarters last night, officers and directors of the campaign said most of the workers had made some calls since the opening dinner Tuesday night.

Posthumous Promotion Of Major Harward Is Announced

Mrs. Effie Lillis Victim of Accident

Baltimore, April 3 (AP)—Governor Herbert R. O'Connor announced yesterday the posthumous promotion of Major Winfield B. Harward of Churchville, Md., to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the Maryland National Guard.

The governor said he had been considering the appointment prior to Major Harward's death March 29, and that the commission would be presented to his widow.

Major Harward had long service with the state's military forces and was cited for gallantry in action during the war.

Governor O'Connor also announced the promotion of Second Lieutenant Millard C. Bowen, Jr., of Hyattsville, to first lieutenant to fill a vacancy in Company "F" First Infantry.

Mrs. Lillis' body was found yesterday at 7 a. m. by Henry Lee, colored, of 516 Hill street, Lee, who fired the furnace at the house, discovered the body after he noticed a light burning on the first floor of the building and went in to investigate.

Mrs. Lillis, widow of James H. Lillis, lived alone. She had a bedroom on the second floor of the building and used the kitchen at the rear of the first floor.

She apparently fell as she started to descend the stairs and struck her head on the baseboard of the stair landing.

Relatives said the fall may have been caused by an infected foot from which she had been suffering.

Dr. Corson placed the time of the fatal accident at about 11 p. m. Tuesday. He said that Mrs. Lillis' bed had not been slept in and that she was fully clothed.

Mrs. Lillis was a native of Cumberland. Her husband, who died about four years ago, was proprietor of the Enterprise Printing Company for nearly thirty-five years.

An older sister, Mrs. Annabelle Ryland, a patient at Allegheny hospital, is the only immediate survivor.

"The worst little devil in town" was the way a neighbor described this 12-year-old boy. Stealing, throwing rocks at dogs and cats, and making a disturbance wherever he went, he just missed being dragged before the juvenile court.

The neighbor told a Scout leader about him, hoped they could do something about it. The Scout leader adroitly managed to get him to visit a troop meeting. Hiking and camping interested him.

That was two years ago. Today he is a full-fledged Scout, respectful, orderly, and active in Scout activities. Just a normal boy who got off on the wrong foot. A little attention skillfully administered made him an asset instead of a liability in the community.

Fall Down Stairs Kills Woman, 75

SUGAR HARVEST—The annual pageant of the sugar-making is on again, and the old familiar scenes, almost unchanged in the last 150 years, still stir the imagination. These views, duplicated throughout the Alleghenies, were taken at the Otto farm at New Germany. The girl is Miss Anita Lauve, Baltimore school teacher who came skiing, but helped make syrup instead. The sap run has been disappointing to the farmers so far this year. See story.—News Staff Photos.

Sudden Warm Weather Disappoints Sugar Makers in Garrett County

Times change rapidly these hurried days, and so do things on the farm—except sugar making.

The winter held on too long, and then it let go in too big a hurry.

Ideal sugar weather is warm days which keep the sap elevators running, and crisp, frosty nights which hold back the buds. Once the buds come out, the sap ceases to flow or loses the proper flavor.

Although Garrett countians have had their keelers out for about two weeks, the run has been far from satisfactory.

One farmer reported last night that he has gotten only about one-third as much sap as usual this year.

"And unless we get some cold weather it'll be all done soon, too," he added.

The buckets are out as usual this spring, and the sugar-mist began to rise before the ski snow.

Laborious because a bucketful of sap is heavy; because maple trees grow among rocks and ravines and on steep hill-sides; because the fires that drive the vapors off need fuel; and because it still takes from thirty to forty gallons of sap to make a gallon of pancake dressing.

Young Frostburg Artist's Works Win Recognition

Two Accepted For Annual State Exhibit

Two lithographs by a Frostburg artist have been accepted for inclusion in the Eighth Annual Exhibition of Maryland Art, which is being held at the more Museum of Art until April 15.

The artist so honored is J. Shryock Jr., 24-year-old Frostburg school graduate who is now in New York, where he studies the Art Students League for years.

His parents live in Frostburg. Shryock Sr. is a state roads engineer.

A record number of entries were submitted for the exhibition this year. Only 176 entries were accepted by the jury for exhibition. These 176 entries represent work of 131 artists.

Although several Cumberland painters submitted entries, only two artists from Maryland's western counties had their work accepted. These two were Shryock and Lee Waller, of stone.

Pictures Big Savage Story
Mr. Shryock's two accepted works were "Refugees," an imaginary scene of Polish war victims, and "Storm," made from the view of Big Savage mountain toward the Chi-burg during a thunder storm.

Mr. Waller, whose name was familiar to other local artists, was called last night, won recognition with a still life in oil painting.

The jury which selected the art for exhibition was Henry V. Speck, Poor, American painter and sculptor; Peyton Boswell, Jr., artist and editor of the Art Digest; and Edmund Minor Archer, art associate curator of the New York Museum of American Art.

None are Marylanders.

Significant Exhibit
Leslie Cheek Jr., director of the Baltimore Museum of Art, gave the foreword to the catalogue of the exhibition, said, "Every year Euro eight years the Baltimore Museum of Art has taken pleasure in exhibiting its galleries to a large number of artists. Such exhibitions have given the artists a chance to show their products, and the public a chance to view the varying planes in local art. For the past few years, local juries, working with great sincerity, have chosen the works to be exhibited."

"This year, however, a distinguished man having no connection was invited to make the entries. In this manner, a purely detached viewpoint was maintained; a national standard, rather than a local one was applied, resulting exhibition has, therefore, a nationwide significance."

As the importance of being in a section of the artistic profession, Maryland today.

Room for All
"To indicate the complete expression in the visual arts in our time, and to offer an enlightening comparison between the various categories of good and bad, the museum has hung in its downstairs galleries a 'Salon des Refuses'—a Salon contains one work of an artist who was rejected by the jury, though a few artists, unfortunately, refused to allow this privilege."

"The Jury for the Museum of Maryland painting to be exhibited, varied, though chiefly in painting landscapes of the scene. The most prominent feature of the works submitted was the large number of canvases, many of which were of the 'Sunday painters' type, some of which were greatly admired for their sincerity and directness of expression."

"The prices on the major Maryland works exhibited are well within the range of the average citizen. A week later artists can receive their encouragement, not from the veil of seum, but from purchases by the censors landers themselves. As most of the works in the exhibition are of a nature entirely suitable for decoration, the Museum hopes the line visitors will buy as well as see. The Museum stands ready in any transaction between artist and artist without charge."
